WELCOME to...

THE UNIVERSITY OF RHODE ISLAND
Do you know anyone who would go to an exotic city and spend a whole vacation there watching television? You’re making the same mistake — cheating yourself — if you confine your college experience to the classroom.

For a student who has a job or other responsibilities, the temptation is great to get off campus fast. Your time is limited, and all that collegiate stuff outside of class is not mandatory. So why waste the time? Because “all that stuff” is really not a waste. Contact with professors, friendships with your classmates, extracurricular activities, the riches of the library — these make up the “life” of your college life.

The faculty is a tremendous resource out of class as well as in. Professors, instructors and lecturers are more than teachers. They’re scientists, writers, psychologists, business people, mathematicians, artists, philosophers, musicians, historians, engineers. They’re experts and scholars, active and highly knowledgeable in their fields, often consulted by others for their ideas. And here they are — in your orbit.

Seek them out, especially those teachers whose fields you have a particular interest in. Ask for a few minutes of their time. Take the initiative to get acquainted with them during their office hours, by appointment, or at any other time and place that’s mutually convenient. You can profit enormously by discussing your work in the course, its connections with other subjects, your career goals, or your problems.

Classmates offer a rich opportunity for new friendships. Their presence in your class gives them at least one thing in common with you. You’ll find more. Those with different backgrounds are what “broadening your horizons” is all about. Aside from the rewards of friendship, you’ll benefit from studying with them, exchanging ideas, helping them when they need help, and drawing on their support when you’re faced with problems. The friends you make in college often remain your friends for life.

The first class session is a good time to introduce yourself to a few other students. Exchange telephone numbers so that if you are absent, they can give you the homework assignments and the material you missed in class. Try to arrange to study together and work on assignments together. This has both educational and social value. Very often, students who form “study groups” do far better in college than those who always work alone.

Clubs, teams, organizations and other student activities open you up to additional friendships, plus recreation. They may also add to your knowledge of an academic subject, expand your understanding of an occupational field, help sharpen your skills and give you real-life experience, all in a relaxed social setting.

“The true university,” someone said a century ago, “is a collection of books.” Today, your college library is more than that and more than a “study tank.” Besides books and magazines, it’s stocked with such audio and visual resources as films, cassettes, art and photographic reproductions, recordings of speeches, poetry and plays, all kinds of music — and more. Librarians are on hand to help acquaint you with what’s there and how to find what you’re looking for. Cash in on this treasure, not only for your work but for your pleasure.

Orientation programs are designed by your college to introduce you to the college scene. They explore such questions as course requirements, sources of financial aid, how to add a course or withdraw from one without penalty, and how to get a tutor or a transcript of your grades. They save you a lot of legwork by telling you where to go for all kinds of help. And they give you the opportunity to meet and share your concerns with fellow students.

Your college is rich in resources — people, services and opportunities, but none of them will come and get you. You will have to go and get them. Only your initiative will determine how much of a return you get from your investment in college.

Special thanks to the authors of this article, Aaron Alexander and Harryn Vines, and to the publisher, The Professional Staff Congress, for permission to reprint this article from “Making It Through College.”

The University of Rhode Island is a co-educational, state-assisted institution. It is one of the original land grant colleges and in 1971 became one of the first four sea grant colleges in the country. It is located in the village of Kingston in South County, 20 miles south of Providence and just 6 miles from the ocean. The University's main campus encompasses 1200 acres off R.I. Route 138. The center of the campus is a quadrangle surrounded by beautiful granite buildings that comprise the original campus. Academic buildings, residence halls, fraternities and sororities are all within walking distance. Just below these areas, are the gyms, the athletic fields, tennis courts and a freshwater pond. Greenhouses, dairy barns, and agricultural experiment areas are also nearby. The University is also responsible for the maintenance of two other campuses. The Bay Campus in Narragansett, R.I. and the W. Alton Jones Campus in West Greenwich, R.I.

The University consists of eight Colleges: Arts and Sciences, Business, Engineering, Human Services and Sciences, Nursing, Pharmacy, Resource Development, and the University College. There are over 1000 faculty and staff members serving students in URI's academic and business departments. Graduate programs exist in many Colleges, including the internationally known Graduate School of Oceanography.

URI was originally established as a state agricultural school on March 23, 1888. It became a state College in 1892, and was officially named Rhode Island State College in 1909. On March 23, 1951, the Rhode Island State College was granted University status by the state legislature, and the University of Rhode Island has continued to grow since then. The land the University is presently situated on was once the farm of Oliver Watson. The restored, colonial Watson farmhouse, still standing today, is in the heart of the campus, on Alumni Avenue surrounded by Tucker Hall, the University Library and Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity.

LOTS OF MEMORIES
Welcome New Students!

We are excited to give you, your first real piece of the University of Rhode Island. In these next few years, you will experience some of the most rewarding times of your life. The experiences had and memories created will be the most cherished. This is a time for you to develop your talents, sharpen your skills and become a responsible person.

The University of Rhode Island offers numerous activities in which you can be a part. You can participate in a number of clubs from URI-TV to student senate to special interest clubs like: Students for Social Change, Ski Club or Swim team. If the club or team you want isn’t here; why not organize one! Test your abilities and try!

Panel and Interfraternity Council (IFC) began sponsoring the publication of “Who’s New” to help our new students make a smooth transition to college life. As members of the Greek system, we encourage you to try Greek life. It may be the part of your college experience.

Being a greek may help you to become more involved in campus and community life. As greeks, we support many local and national charities. We not only give thousands of dollars annually, but we donate hundreds of hours to these very worthy causes. But it’s not all work.

The friendships you make in your Greek house will be the most lasting. You share a common bond and you have similar interests that makes you friends. You share dreams together, you laugh together, cry together but most of all, you grow together!

If it’s for you, GO GREEK! Just remember, greek life isn’t for everyone. But, the University of Rhode Island does offer something for you! The best advice we can give you is “GET INVOLVED!” AND DO YOUR OWN THING!!!

Good Luck and Best Wishes in your first year at
URI

Sincerely,

Dina A. Proulx

What Is Rush?

Formal rush for both men and women is a time for rushees and initiated members to get to know each other better through a series of carefully planned “parties.” After Rush has been completed and bids have been extended, you will begin pledging/associating with the fraternity or sorority of your choice.

It is important to come to Rush with an open mind and to give each chapter equal consideration. Be yourself! Rush is a mutual selection process, so remember as you evaluate each chapter, they will evaluate you. Do not let other’s opinions make the decision for you, but go with your own feelings, for the decision will affect the rest of your college years.

You may wonder what qualities Greek organizations look for in an individual. Completing a rush application will give you an idea of these qualities. Personality and interest are also important, but so is academics, since it is the main reason you are attending college.

Always be sure to ask questions. If you have any questions pertaining to rush, financial matters, or social activities, ask someone to clear up these points for you!

Another important point to consider is finances. Careful consideration should be given to your financial situation before making any obligations.

Even though a rushee is not obligated to pledge/associate at the end of rush, we ask you to look carefully at Greek life as it is a way for you to meet the Greeks and to find out about the opportunities we have to offer. Like it... We love it! Go Greek!

The Panhellenic Council, made up of representatives from each of the seven sororities is the major governing body of sororities. Meetings are held twice a month to insure cohesiveness among the chapters and handle problems which may arise for each house. The Panhel holds a formal rush during the fall semester when the houses are recruiting new members.

The Interfraternity Council also has representatives from each of the sixteen fraternities. Each of the fraternities are nationally affiliated and governed by the Council. The IFC provides many services for its member fraternities, setting rush policies and promoting unity between houses.
The time has finally come. You’ve made it to college! And there are plenty of things, events, and people ahead of you. You’ve left the ranks of high school and are now ready to start being an “adult.” This can sound pretty scary when you realize just what you’re up against but don’t forget that there will be good times as well as bad ones.

One of the first things you’ll learn at college is responsibility. There won’t be anyone to tell you to do your homework or even to tell you to go to class. You have to do your own laundry (where’s Mom when you need her most?!), and in some cases, prepare your own food. You’ll realize that you’re actually growing up. But there’s really no need to worry. Millions of students have gone through the same thing. So relax. The best years of your life are about to begin!

All this responsibility and freedom can be weird at first, but there is really no better place to be. You’ll be getting one of the best educations possible, and enjoying it at the same time.

There is much more to college than just classes and studying. You’ll learn to deal with all kinds of people and you’ll gain a multitude of life experience. There’s so much ahead of you.

Welcome!
