LGBTIQQ Symposium Style Sheet

The style of the Symposium's publications is generally modern and academic.

No professional titles are used on schedule (table).

On Synopses, terminal and professional degrees only are listed for all participants: Ph.D., D.Psy., etc.

If terminal and professional degrees are used for any participant, they must be used for all who are entitled to them.

When "Professor" is used, the person's exact academic rank should be shown and their title, institution and department follow the person's name

Dr. as a title should be avoided because it has multiple, inconsistent meanings. Use degrees and professional titles.

Whenever possible, an individual's exact professional title and affiliation should be given in the Synopsis.

Affiliations and sponsorships are shown in Synopses only.

Credentials listed in headings are not repeated in the text which follows.

Synopses: Two spaces between presenters information and the text of the synopsis

Books, Films, Plays, Exhibits and the like appear in italics. [Only titles of short poems appear in quotes.]

Underlining is never used.

A url is displayed 2 points smaller than surrounding text.

Manually correct pasted text for correct apostrophe's and quotations marks (' "")

Hyphens are for compound words and word-division.

En-dashes are for numeric ranges (2000–2001)

Em-dashes are for incorporated comments (—). Em-dashes are preceded and followed by a space.

"Don't Ask, Don't Tell" Policy

black, transgender, gay, lesbian, &c. are lower case unless the name of a specific group.

But: African-American

Alumnus, alumna, alumni, alumnae [alum is casual. For gender-neutral, use graduate]

Synopses reflect the author's submission, edited for uniformity of style and consistency.

Authors should be reminded that promotional language (e.g., for films), first person text, and present-tense references to the historic past may come across different from what they intend.
