A LITTLE BOY POINTED UPWARD

I AM in no frame of mind to whisper sweet nothings through the printed page to the Class of 1940. But I will weave for you a story out of the yarn of human experiences.

March 12 was a funeral day. It marked the burial of all aspirations, desires, hopes and rewards for the future. For several weeks there had been an air of mystery around the house. The members of the household showed the same signs of uneasiness that animals exhibit before a major catastrophe. At the luncheon the little boy asked, "Daddy, where are you going this afternoon?" He was told. Then he continued, "What are you going to do?" This time he was told a little, not much. Silence prevailed. Later, in his own room, in one of the profoundest moments in life, he said, "Daddy, this is home. This is the only place I know. I have never lived any other place. But if you are going to leave, I am going with you. I can work. I can mow lawns. I won't get that boat and outboard motor this summer. We don't have to go to the movies as often as we do. There is just one show, though, I would like to see."

Father and son went to the movies that night and stayed out until twelve o'clock which is a great event in the life of any eleven year old boy.

And the father turned in the middle of the river and rowed back.

I hope someday every one of you may have a son like him.

RHODE ISLAND STATE COLLEGE

EXPERIMENT STATION

THIS group, organized as a State-Federal project, takes part in performing two of the main functions of the College. These are accomplished by carrying on research in agricultural work, and in distributing the bulletins which reveal this information to all those who desire it.

Though many of us are unaware of its import, the agricultural people of the State appreciate the Experiment Station's worth. This organization has made great advancement along the agricultural research line, nationally as well as locally.

Third Row: Stene, Schlenker, Cox, Hirsch, Christopher, Smith, Crossman

EXTENSION SERVICE

IT is by means of the Extension Service, organized under provision of the Smith-Lever Act, that the work of the College in agriculture and home economics is brought to the people of the State who are beyond the college age.

Its work is conducted on a project basis, information accrued is distributed through radio programs, lectures, pamphlets, and demonstrations, thus maintaining a closer contact between the people of the State and the College.

RHODE ISLAND STATE COLLEGE

THE FACULTY

(1) What a whopper! Who caught it? (2 & 3) Our wives have gone to the country, Hootay. (4) Justice at the tape. Flunk or pass, it's still justice. (5) Gable in the woods. He found the yellow basket. (6) Kinda flabby Paul! We're not kidding. (7) Weldin, Townsend, and Messina compare marks. Flunk him! (8) Cub reporter. Don't be nervous, prof, easy does it. (9) Rocky smiles, economic waste or did Townsend lose the fish. (10) Joey takes a tumble, but manages a smile. (11) Future Mozarts, or are they Duchins and Cole Porters? (12) Prexy at his desk.
