Objects

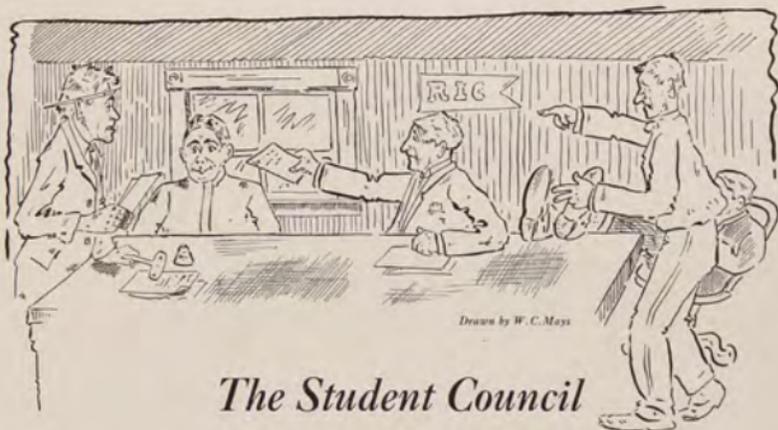

To promote the best interests of the college, and to further and strengthen the attachment of its members to their Alma Mater.

Members

All graduates of the college who have received a degree are considered regular members of the Association. Any member of a class which has graduated may become an associate member on election by the executive committee. A present or former member of the corporation or faculty may be elected as an honorary member.

Meetings

The annual meeting of the Association is held at the college on Commencement Day, unless otherwise ordered by the executive committee.

The Student Council

JUST when this body was formed is hard to determine, but the present secretary's book bears the date of October, 1898, and we suppose that several volumes equally large were filled before that time.

The office of peacemaker is always a dangerous position for one man; so each class decided to have one or two representatives meet together to discuss various sources of trouble and pour oil and consolation on ruffled waters and college men. This body possesses the dignified title of "Student Council," and is made up of one Preparatory student, one Freshman, one Sophomore, two Juniors, and two honorable, upright, and manly Seniors.

Troubles sometimes start with the faculty, but more often at the other end. Methods of handling the case are, however, about the same wherever it starts. A meeting is held, the subject threshed out, and finally a committee confers with the president of the college and leaves the real work to him. The outcome is usually as nearly satisfactory to both parties as such things can be.

At other times, a new idea strikes somebody, and he at once decides that this college would be everlastingly benefited, "If——," etc. (here follows the idea). Again the council meets, again the animated debates (see drawing by an eyewitness), again the delegation to the president, and once more peace flits undisturbed through the dormitory.

The following may be cited as an instance of what this body has accomplished. Time was when a broken window cost an indefinite sum of money, depending on the bank account of the carpenter shop, the standing of the offender, and various other if's. But now a definite price has been set, and half is taken off, if the offender acknowledges his deed; so that a person wishing to find a pastime and owning a limited pocket-book can tell how many windows he may afford, and the discount for being honest makes him report at the office. Did George Washington receive a rebate for honesty?

The variety of difficulties would surprise some, but human nature shows out both in students and faculty; and peacemaking is not a life-risking business where there are so many peacemakers.
