PO20 PEDERALE

The season of 1900 was a disastrous one for the college team. It is plainly evident that if we expect to win from other teams in our class we must abandon obsolete methods of coaching and exhibit more college spirit. Unless the places on the team are obtained only after fierce competition, and kept only while a good game is played, we must expect defeat. We appeal to the loyal undergraduates of the R. I. C. Get out next year and make a strong, fast team, which shall retrieve our lost position in athletics. Don't let the Blue and White be humbled by our ancient rivals another season. Some men improved their game last year, others stood still, but make practice and progress your watchword and go in to win.

The Lecture Association

Early in October there was a mass meeting held in the chapel for the purpose of discussing the desirability of inaugurating a course of popular lectures at the college. The faculty and some of the students had for a long time felt the need of such lectures, and it only required the guiding spirit of some of the older heads to awaken the same feeling in the minds of the rest of the college people. It was decided to form an association for the purpose of conducting such a course, and a committee was appointed to draw up a set of by-laws and nominate officers for the ensuing year. On October 8 another meeting was called and the following officers were elected: President, B. J. Cornell; Secretary, John Wilby; Treasurer, Miss Merrow; Assistant Treasurer, Miss Steere.

The association is to be known as the Rhode Island College Lecture Association, and aims to bring the better class of lecturers within reach of the students and their friends.

The course during the past season consisted of five lectures on various subjects, and all were well attended by the people of Kingston and vicinity, as well as by the students. Everybody was apparently much pleased, and it is hoped that the association will continue its good work next year.

The following lectures were given during the season:,

HEZEKIAH BUTTERWORTH:

Rhode Island Folk Lore.

Lieut. Com. GARDINER C. SIMS:

Reminiscences of the Spanish War.

THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON:

American Orators and Oratory.

JACOB A. RIIS:

The Battle with the Slum,

HENRY AUSTIN CLAPP:

Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice."
