NOTE: oranges are Not the Only Fruit is not yet available on video from the BBC. Probably we can't show it publicly (even if we have a tape of it from t.v.), since BBC has not released it yet on video. More information available on this from BBC video, as listed under distributors above.

Question: If we own a film, or have rented it from a video store, is it legal to show it in a public series (no admission fee) without paying for public screening rights? Where or how to get information about this?
