1976

Berman, Ronald: News Articles (1976): News Article 05

Phillip M. Kadis

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.uri.edu/pell_neh_I_11

Recommended Citation

http://digitalcommons.uri.edu/pell_neh_I_11/35

This News Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Education: National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities, Subject Files I (1973-1996) at DigitalCommons@URI. It has been accepted for inclusion in Berman, Ronald: News Articles (1976) by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@URI. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@etal.uri.edu.
Way Cleared For Okay of Arts Fundings

By Philip M. Karr

The breaking of a long-standing impasse by Senate conferees yesterday paved the way for enactment of legislation before September legislative recess which will make it easier for states to establish governmental bodies to stimulate the performing and visual arts. The conferees agreed on provisions that would establish an estimated $200,000 annually for the Humanities Endowment for the Arts for five years beginning in 1976, "both endowments to be made available to the states, and to the District of Columbia for the District of Columbia."

The Staff will produce legislation on the conference report and the joint explanatory statement of the conferees for consideration of each bill. If we were African and we could talk with the dead, we would ask the dead horse if they had any suggestions. An underground was erected on April 10, 1726, to store the dead horse. The dead horse was a horse that died in 1726. The underground was needed because the horse had been buried in the streets and the smell was unbearable. The underground was a small room with a hole in the floor. The dead horse was put in the hole and the hole was covered with a board. The underground was used for many years and was eventually closed in the 1930s.

The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment, and the conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment. The conferees yesterday swapped and quarreled over the provisions of the humanities endowment.

The staff of the Joint Explanatory Committee had gathered in the room to work on the legislation. Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., was visibly pleased with the progress. Sen. Pell went through his notes and marked them with red pens. He then put them in a folder and tucked it under his arm. Sen. Pell went to the Senate floor and made a speech. Sen. Pell spoke for two hours and was applauded by the Senate.

"We don't want the Senate to have to make the decision," Sen. Pell said. "We want the state to make the decision."

="W"