Dear Senator Pell

The coming Independence Day again reminds me of the 56 great and honorable men - the Real Fathers of our Country, whose faces I have retraced to the year 1776. I also remember the kind letter which you have written then about it to Mrs. Nancy Ha

Now my friend Ian Sutherland is going to try to persuade the Post Office to publish all 56 portraits of the "Signers" as a series - in toto, or in the groups of the 13 original States. He thinks that it has an added merit of having been done by the same artist, scientifically researched and classically executed - something that no one else has attempted to do before. He also thinks that an encouraging note from you might help the Postmaster Gen or his committee to make up their minds favorably about it. Of course, the success of it would make the Happiest American. My health is steadily improving and I try as much as possible to walk without a cane.

So, Happy Independence Day!

With devoted affectionate wishes to you and your family

I am, as always - to Honorable Claiborn Pell U.S. Senator from R.I.

Washington, D.C.

Your old friend
Michael Werboff
