J. Michael Farrell is a partner in the law firm of Manatt, Phelps, Rothenberg & Phillips. The firm has offices in Los Angeles and Washington. Mr. Farrell's primary activities include energy, trade, corporate, legislative and administrative law. The firm is also active in real estate, environmental, tax and financial areas. Mr. Farrell has been appointed by the President as a Commissioner of the United States of America on the Commission for Alternatives to the Panama Canal and by the Secretary of Energy as a member of the National Petroleum Council. Also, he is a director of the Air Force Academy Foundation.

From May 1985 through September 1987, Mr. Farrell was General Counsel for the U.S. Department of Energy. In that position he was responsible for the Department's legal activities: These include environmental negotiations with local, state and federal agencies (such as CERCLA, RCRA, Clean Air and Clean Water Acts), litigation including the largest foreclosure in U.S. history (Great Plains Coal Gasification Project), trade policies, privatization programs, extensive procurement and legislation activity. He served on many interagency working groups responsible for policy recommendations in such areas as transfer of technology, intellectual property, tort policy, commercial space and as a member of the Administrative Conference of the U.S. He was appointed by the President to be a Member of the President's Commission on Compensation of Career Federal Executives. In addition, he served as one of the Department's principal spokesmen giving numerous speeches and appearing before Congressional committees on oil policy, import controls, Price Anderson renewal, technology transfer and energy security.

From January 1981 through May 1982, he held several other federal government appointments including Private Sector Coordinator of the Caribbean Basin Initiative at the Department of State; Deputy Director, Office of Presidential personnel at the White House; and Assistant Counsel, Office of the Counsel to the President. In 1980, he was Counsel to the Natural Resources section of the Reagan Transition Team.

Mr. Farrell has engaged in private practices of law in Washington, D.C. for 20 years, including litigation before local and federal courts along with relevant administrative and legislative representation.
