ABSTRACT

During the first session of the 100th Congress, legislation (H.J. Res. 90) was passed by the House of Representatives and the Senate authorizing the President to call a White House Conference on Library and Information Services. The Senate-passed version of this bill also contains provisions related to postsecondary education student assistance programs, authorizations for aid to specified educational institutions, a Constitutional Bicentennial Education Program, and drug abuse education programs. H.J. Res. 90 currently awaits conference committee action. This report provides a side-by-side comparison of major provisions of H.J. Res. 90, as passed by the Senate, except those related to drug abuse education, with provisions of the House-passed bill or, where appropriate, current law.
LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SERVICES: A SIDE-BY-SIDE COMPARISON OF HOUSE- AND SENATE-PASSED VERSIONS OF H.J. RES. 90, 100TH CONGRESS, LEGISLATION AUTHORIZING THE PRESIDENT TO CALL A WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

INTRODUCTION

During the first session of the 100th Congress, the House and Senate passed different versions of a bill 1/ that would authorize the President to call a White House Conference on Library and Information Services, similar to the one conducted in 1979. 2/ This bill, H.J. Res. 90, currently awaits conference committee action.

The most significant difference between the House and Senate versions of H.J. Res. 90 is that the House bill contains only provisions regarding a White House Conference on Library and Information Services (WHCLIS), while the Senate version also contains provisions related to a Constitutional Bicentennial Education Program (title II of the Senate-passed version of H.J. Res. 90), certain postsecondary student financial assistance programs (title III), grants to specified library and educational institutions or organizations (title IV),

1/ On June 8, 1987, the House passed H.J. Res. 90 (H. Rept. 100-121). The Senate passed its version of this bill on Dec. 15, 1987, amended to contain the provisions of S.J. Res. 26 (S. Rept. 100-156), as amended during Senate floor debate.

and drug abuse education (title V). As a result, in the following brief discussion and the side-by-side comparison, the House bill is directly compared only to titles I and IV of the Senate bill. Titles II and III of the Senate bill, for which there are no comparable provisions in the House bill, are compared to relevant provisions of current law. Finally, title V of the Senate bill is not included in this side-by-side comparison.

The following report provides a side-by-side comparison of the major provisions of the House- and Senate-passed versions of this legislation, with one exception (described below). This is preceded by a brief discussion of the major differences between the two versions of the bill.

OVERVIEW OF MAJOR DIFFERENCES BETWEEN HOUSE- AND SENATE-PASSED VERSIONS OF H.J. RES. 90

With respect to provisions for a WHCLIS, there are only two significant differences between the two versions of H.J. Res. 90. First, only the Senate bill explicitly provides that States are not required to participate in State or regional conferences that might be held in preparation for the WHCLIS. Second, the bills have different appropriation authorization levels—"such sums as may be necessary" under the House bill versus $5 million under the Senate bill.

There are also no provisions in the House bill that are comparable to title IV of the Senate bill. However, in this case there are no comparable provisions in current law either.

version. In each case, the authorization is not limited to a particular fiscal year(s), and appropriated funds are to remain available for obligation until expended. In addition, the Senate version (only) limits the use of Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA) funds for the Conference to those funds appropriated for LSCA title III (interlibrary cooperation).

Only the Senate-passed version of H.J. Res. 90 contains authorizations for grants to four specified educational institutions or consortia. These grants would be authorized for the:

--Washington (D.C. area university) Library Consortium,
--Vermont Higher Education Council,
--Health and Human Services Center at Vorhees College (Denmark, South Carolina), and
--University of Mississippi Law Library.

The Senate bill also authorizes an expansion of the current Constitutional Bicentennial Education Program, conducted by the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution. This program's appropriation authorization level would be increased by $3 million for each of fiscal years 1987 and 1988, with the increased funds to be used for elementary and secondary school teacher training programs.

The Senate-passed version of H.J. Res. 90 would make several amendments to the Income Contingent Direct Loan Project, authorized under title IV, part D of the Higher Education Act (HEA). The Senate bill would amend the authorizing legislation for this program to:

--increase the maximum number of participating institutions of higher education from 10 to 20, in fiscal years when the appropriation exceeds $5 million;
--allow consortia of institutions of higher education to participate;
--allow participating institutions to pay loan interest (on behalf of student borrowers) that accrues while students are still in school
(i.e., students would not be charged interest while in school);

--extend loan eligibility to graduate students, and increase the maximum cumulative loan limit for such students from the current (undergraduate only) level of $17,500 to $44,500;

--eliminate the option for institutions to charge borrowers a variable interest rate; and

--reduce the rate charged to borrowers by 2.5 percent.

Finally, with the previously mentioned exception of drug abuse education provisions, the Senate bill makes two amendments to HEA provisions for the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) program. First, a current provision allowing loan guaranty agencies to provide certain information to institutions of higher education on GSL defaults by their former students would be amended to require the provision of this information. Second, eligibility to borrow GSLs would be expanded to include persons taking courses necessary to obtain elementary and secondary school teacher certification in their State, even if the courses do not lead to a postsecondary degree or similar credential.

II. COMPARISON OF TITLES II AND III OF H.J. RES. 90, AS PASSED BY THE SENATE, WITH CURRENT LAW

Current Law

H.J. Res. 90, as passed by the Senate

Constitutional Bicentennial Education Program

Under title V of the Arts, Humanities, and Museums Amendments of 1985, there is authorized a program of grants for educational activities related to the bicentennial of the United States Constitution. This program is administered by the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution. The appropriations authorization level is $5 million for each of fiscal years 1987-1991.

Under title II of the Senate-passed version of H.J. Res. 90, the appropriations authorization for the Constitutional Bicentennial Education Program is raised to $8 million for each of fiscal years 1987 and 1988. It is further provided that $3 million of each fiscal year's appropriation for this program is to be used for elementary and secondary teacher training and retraining in the social sciences and humanities that is intended to enhance understanding of the Constitution.
Current Law

In any fiscal year in which the appropriation for this program exceeds $5 million, up to 10 additional institutions of higher education may participate. These additional institutions may include consortia of institutions, if all of the institutions in each consortium is located in the same State.

Number of participating institutions

Title IV, part D of the Higher Education Act (HEA) authorizes the Secretary of Education to conduct a demonstration project of direct loans (i.e., the capital is provided by the Federal Government plus educational institutions, rather than by banks or other savings institutions) with income contingent repayment schedules (i.e., the annual borrower payments vary on the basis of income). Currently, no more than 10 institutions of higher education may participate in this program, and there is no explicit authorization for participation by consortia of institutions.

Payment of in-school interest by participating institutions

Under current law, institutions of higher education that participate in this program are authorized to use program funds only for loans (principal, not interest) to students, plus administrative and loan collection costs.

Eligibility for graduate and professional students

Currently, only undergraduate students are eligible to receive income-contingent loans under this demonstration program. The maximum cumulative amount that a student may borrow is $17,500.

Graduate and professional students may borrow loans under this program. For such students, the annual loan limit is $10,000, and the maximum cumulative loan limit is raised to $44,500.
Current Law

Interest rate

The interest rate on income contingent loans may be either fixed at the time the loan is made, or may vary on an annual basis, at the discretion of the participating institution. In either case, the rate is to be equal to the average (bond equivalent) interest rate for 91-day Treasury bills auctioned during the 3 month period ending September 30 of the preceding year, plus 3%.

H.J. Res. 90, as passed by the Senate

Interest rates are to be fixed at the time the loan is made, and may not be varied thereafter. Also, the interest rate is reduced to the Treasury bill rate (as described in the preceding column) plus 0.5% (rather than 3%).
Guaranteed Student Loans

Information on defaults

Under title IV, part C of the Higher Education Act, each student loan guaranty agency may, if requested, provide to eligible institutions of higher education information on loan defaults by former students of those institutions. The information may include the names and addresses of such former students. Public dissemination of this information is not authorized.

Eligibility for loans of persons in certain teacher training programs

In order to be eligible for a Guaranteed Student Loan, a person must be enrolled, or accepted for enrollment, in a degree, certificate, or similar program "leading to a recognized educational credential at an institution of higher education", or be "enrolled in a course of study necessary for enrollment in a program leading to a degree or certificate" (section 484, Higher Education Act).

Another category of students is added to those described in the previous column—persons "enrolled or accepted for enrollment in a program at an eligible institution leading to a professional credential or certification from a State that is required for employment as a teacher in an elementary or secondary school in that State" (section 303). Thus, persons in programs to obtain elementary and secondary school teacher certification are eligible to borrow Guaranteed Student Loans, even if their educational program does not lead to a degree or similar credential. This would typically apply to individuals who have already received a baccalaureate or higher degree, but need to take certain additional courses in order to qualify for certification as a public elementary or secondary school teacher.
TALKING POINTS FOR AMENDMENTS TO SJ RES 26, August 5, 1987

The committee amendment strengthens and clarifies the resolution calling for a White House Conference on Libraries.

I am offering the following amendments to S.J. Res. 26 on behalf of Senator Stafford and myself.

First the dates of the conference are being pushed back so as to allow ample time for the Appropriations Committee to consider funding for it. This will also give those states that wish to hold state level conferences enough time to plan for them.

Secondly, the language concerning optional state conferences is clarified. It should now be clear that state level conferences are entirely optional.

Thirdly, an authorization level of $5 million is added. This figure has been discussed in hearings both in the House and Senate as the desired maximum federal contribution to this conference. It also reflects the $3.5 million cost of the 1979 conference as adjusted for inflation.

Lastly, in an effort to avoid using precious library services funds for this conference, we are asking that states use funds exclusively from Title III of the Library Services and Construction Act to fund their state level conferences. In 1987, Title III received $18 million which should be more than enough to cover costs associated with this conference. Moreover Title III monies are to be used for the planning, establishment and operation of cooperative networks of libraries at the local, regional and interstate level - goals very much in keeping with the themes of the conference.
