Going Down Hill.

"That looks bad," exclaimed farm-er Burt Darwin, as he took a good look at the sunken window of a homestead. "That's enough; I'll have to build a new one.

J. O. Burt Darwin, the farmer, was building a new window in his barn. The old one had been blown out by a strong wind.

The farmer was busy with his work when a sudden gust of wind blew the old window out of the barn. The farmer then decided to build a new window.

The next day, the farmer was working on the new window when he noticed that the sun was shining through the hole. He realized that he had made a mistake and decided to build a new window with a better design.
