The Orpaha.

He was hailed by a hoarse whisper as he entered the darkness—

"No, sir! No, sir! Run away! Run away!"

He turned his head, and his heart sank at the sound. He saw a figure in the darkness, moving slowly forward, with a light in his hand. He knew it was the man who had followed him. He had been pursued for weeks, and now he was going to be caught.

"No, sir! No, sir! Run away!"

He started to run, but the man in the darkness was too quick. He caught him by the arm, and pulled him to the ground. He began to cry out, but the man held him tight, and closed his ears with his hand. He felt the man's hand on his mouth, and then he was silent.

"You are the man! You are the man!"

He tried to struggle, but the man in the darkness was too strong. He was dragged to a cave, and left alone in the darkness.

"NARRAGANSETT TIMES" Saturday, March 6, 1856.

Covington.—In the Senate, on March 4, A bill was passed authorizing the wharf steamer "Independence," of the American Company, by reducing the rate of transportation of goods between the two countries, if it can be shown that by so doing the country will gain. The bill was passed and sent to the House, where it is expected to pass.

The House passed the deflection appropriation bill.

Bank.—The House confirmed the appointment of Mr. Soonley Shorter as his postmaster for six years. Mr. Parker, from Michigan, reported an article on the "Rice" of the day's meeting.

NARRAGANSETT TIMES

A good deal of the utmost importance to every community, and every individual, is the currency of its public opinion. It is as essential to the growth and prosperity of a country, as it is to the well-being of an individual, to have a constant supply of sound and well-informed public sentiment. The public opinion of the day is, in fact, the soul of the community. As a nation, it is the best guide, the best counselor, the best teacher. It is the voice of the people, the voice of the community, the voice of the nation. It is the voice of the future, the voice of the present, the voice of the past. It is the voice of the ignorant, the voice of the wise, the voice of the rich, the voice of the poor. It is the voice of the young, the voice of the old, the voice of the strong, the voice of the weak. It is the voice of the wrong, the voice of the right. It is the voice of the enemy, the voice of the friend. It is the voice of the enemy, the voice of the friend. It is the voice of the enemy, the voice of the friend. It is the voice of the enemy, the voice of the friend. It is the voice of the enemy, the voice of the friend.

May 8, 1856.

To the Editor of the Narragansett Times:

Your favor of the 6th inst. was this day received. The constant statements which you publish of the existence of a large stock of goods on hand in New York, are undoubtedly very correct. I trust that we shall, in the near future, be enabled to have a large stock of goods on hand, and that we shall be able to supply our customers with goods at a lower price than they can be had in New York.

I am, respectfully,

THOS. P. WELLS.

YARD, ROBSON & SONS.

On the 17th of October, 1855, the following is the stock of goods on hand in New York:

1,000 two-cent pieces per mile.

1,000 five-cent pieces per mile.

The large stock of goods on hand in New York is almost in the inexhaustible number of the goods that can be sold on hand.
