The Two Horses

BY MARIE J. WARD.

Covers with light and laughter her young neck,

Her black eyes stare out in her wise old age,

And on her thin, long, straight back

She proudly bears the burden rough and sage.

The people who have always been her friends,

And who have watched her from her youth till now,

Are those who know her best and best loved.

Yes, she is old, but she is still strong.

She has lived through many years of storms,

And has borne up under every trial.

Her legs are tired, but her spirit is not.

She is still a willing servant, still a faithful friend.

She may be slow, but she is still true.

She is not perfect, but she is not false.

She is a symbol of loyalty and devotion.

She is a faithful companion, always by my side.

Jolly Recorder.

Richard Ryder, as we have been informed, will be the person on the new board of trade of the city of New York, and has recorded a decision to increase the police force of the city, and has made a speech against the people who will not vote for him. He says that he is not a candidate for re-election, and every one of his colleagues and every newspaper editor in the city, on reading the speech, will understand that he is not a candidate for re-election. He is the leader of the opposition and every newspaper editor in the city will understand that he is the leader of the opposition. He is a man of principle and every newspaper editor in the city will understand that he is a man of principle.

Speech of Mr. Hazard.

THE R.I. LEGISLATURE.

The example of other States is frequently urged as a reason for legislative action in Rhode Island. New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Massachusetts, among others, have already appropriated funds for the encouragement of education and have legislated for the establishment of schools and colleges. It is an argument that must be considered.

But I differ from the speakers in the other States. I would leave the history of Rhode Island to the care of the people of Rhode Island. I would leave the people of Rhode Island to take care of the people of Rhode Island. I would leave the people of Rhode Island to take care of the people of Rhode Island. I would leave the people of Rhode Island to take care of the people of Rhode Island.

With the people I would not that our people should be too much concerned about the people of other States. We should take care of our own people. We should take care of our own people. We should take care of our own people. We should take care of our own people.

R. I. L. G. 18 LA.

The R.I. L. G. 18 LA. was organized in 1854 with the object of promoting the interests of labor in Rhode Island. The association was founded by a group of workers who were dissatisfied with the conditions of work in the state, and who believed that the workers should have a voice in the determination of wages and working conditions.

The association has been active in the state since its founding, and has achieved some notable successes. It has fought for the rights of workers, and has been successful in negotiating better wages and working conditions for its members.

The R.I. L. G. 18 LA. has been a source of inspiration for other labor organizations in the state, and has helped to establish the tradition of workers' rights in Rhode Island.

The Times has a history which has been attributed to him, the Prince of Wales, and which was not only his, but also that of his father, Prince Charles. The Prince of Wales was born on May 24, 1854, in London, England. He was the second son of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert.

The Prince of Wales was educated at home, and at the age of 17, he was sent to Germany to study at the University of Heidelberg. He returned to England in 1873, and was made heir apparent.

The Prince of Wales was known for his love of sports, and was a keen hunter and sportsman. He was also a devoted son, and was always present at his mother's side when she was ill.
