I have been in touch with Jack Cummings in the Providence office about my application for an NEA Assistance to Literary Magazines grant. He has told me that Senator Pell will be adding a cover letter to our grant.

In the meantime, I have written a draft of the narrative section (enclosed) required for the grant. I would very much appreciate your comments on how this section might be strengthened.

I also need advice on how much money to request. On page 22 of the Literature Application Guidelines 1995 it states that grants range between $4,000 and $12,000 and that grants, in general, will be awarded for the amount requested or not at all. Yet, the top of page 7 seems to say something else. Since this is a first time request, I am in the dark about the proper strategy to follow in making such a request.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. I can be reached days at 617-864-6427.

Sincerely,

Carol Bonomo Albright
