Dear Claiborne:

I have your letter in behalf of Catherine Hull as a candidate for the Library of Congress Intern Program. Candidates for our Intern Program are nominated by their respective graduate schools. A committee within the Library of Congress reviews the applications and makes a selection of the final candidates. This selection took place last week. Unfortunately, Catherine Hull was not among the final candidates. Because of the small number of intern assignments and the caliber of the applicants, competition is extremely intense. Miss Hull may wish to apply for other vacancies at the Library of Congress. She should write to the Recruitment and Placement Office.

Sincerely yours,
