Spring Conference Issue

EDITORIAL NOTICE:

The Bulletin appears on a monthly basis. News and articles should be submitted to the editor or assistant research editor by the first week of each month. The Bulletin staff can only promise to publish the news it actually receives from the library community.

The Bulletin is a publication for public, school, academic and special libraries of Rhode Island. Published by the Rhode Island Library Association, it is open to news and discussion of interest to RILA members. Articles contained herein, however, do not necessarily reflect the ideas of the RILA membership, or the Bulletin staff, or the Bulletin advertisers. All articles about library matters are welcome, all should be signed and should not exceed ten double spaced typed pages unless the editor is consulted.

Bulletin subscription rates are $6.00/year for agencies or individuals not holding membership in RILA. Advertising rates are available on request.

Editor's Notebook

- Guest Editor
Myron L. Kirkes

In the March 15 issue of Library Journal, John Berry calls for a national organization of professional librarians as a bargaining agent to help fight the erosion of librarians' salaries. Beginning librarians, according to Mr. Berry, are losing ground to inflation with their median salary at $9,710. Directors, although doing somewhat better, are also losing ground if their salaries are compared to the rise in the cost of living.

A recent national news program reported that carpenters for the City of San Francisco went out on strike because they didn't get their anticipated raise which would bring their salaries up to $21,000. This indeed is a hefty salary and the carpenters of that city might be successful in their strike. Perhaps they deserve $21,000. However, what struck me when I heard this report was that librarians in New England have a starting salary approximately $12,000 lower than the carpenters of San Francisco are requesting. Of course, it is somewhat unfair to compare salaries of carpenters in San Francisco to salaries of librarians in New England. It is, on the other hand, interesting to reflect on the carpenters reaction to a salary cut.

I am not aware of any instance where librarians have been able to respond as quickly and forcefully as this group. Librarians are not represented by any group that can make a strong case for their salary demands and consequently end up with salaries far below other groups with comparable training. In the last sentence of the editorial Mr. Berry states, "It may, indeed, be time for a national association of professional librarians." At a median starting salary of $9,710, I think we should have been considering the idea of a professional association of librarians years ago.

(Editorial note - Lee Flanagan, the editor of the Bulletin, was ill this month.
He will be back to work on the May issue).

Regional Senior Citizen Service

C Compton Pawtucket Library

Pawtucket's Senior Awareness Program, funded in January of 1975 by the United Way, has now been in operation for slightly over a year. It is now appropriate to re-examine our goals in the light of our accomplishments, and attempt to determine if this is an economically feasible program--one that other libraries should not hesitate to initiate.

The program was funded originally to serve 34 Class II Intermediate Care Facilities (rest homes) located within the Northern Interrelated Library System. The program's primary target group was the formerly institutionalized elderly--those patients of the Institute of Mental Health and the Ladd School who were deemed "not dangerous to themselves or others" and consigned to the rest homes to end their days. Given this original goal, our program is a 100% success. Every Class II facility within the northern region desiring library service is now receiving it either through its community library or the Senior Awareness Program.

Since many of the librarians in the northern region were either already serving one or two nursing homes in their area, or were persuaded to begin such service in conjunction with the Senior Awareness Program, it was decided in July to expand the scope of the Senior Awareness Program to include nursing, convalescent, and Class I rest homes. Although it was originally estimated that the Program would probably ultimately reach only eighteen homes, that turned out to be a low figure. The Program actually was serving 28 homes with library materials and 15 homes with film programs for a total of 43 homes in a three week period by the end of the year.

The Program is serving 247 patrons with books and other library materials, having dropped another 181 individuals who, for reasons of ill health, death, transfer to another facility, etc., could no longer receive service. Film programs are circumstantially different, for the audience total fluctuates with the weather and the holidays, and not everyone who views films will also receive library materials and vice-versa. An approximated average film audience for one month is 240 individuals. This means we actually reach a total of 400 individuals in a population group of 1336 people, or approximately 30% of the group.

Several factors must be considered when trying to determine whether this program has been cost effective. First and foremost, one must realize that cost-effectiveness for a service organization is different from that of a business organization. The service organization counts cost in transaction units whereas the business figures profit on production units. Libraries do not make a profit; they do try to deliver a service at the lowest possible cost.

Secondly, several elements that are peculiar to this Program may not be inherent in others. Senior Awareness employs two full-time people and one part-time record-keeper. Deliveries are made via the private cars of the two full-time employees. This makes it possible to deliver materials in two widely separate areas of the region in the same time period. It also eliminates expenditures for a vehicle with its attendant costs in maintenance, garageing, insurance, etc. The burden of this cost is put upon the employees as owners of the vehicles, and thus is not figured into the cost of the program.

Including both direct and indirect costs, the Senior Awareness Program was operated for $24,315.97 for one calendar year. Direct costs are salaries, purchases made with United Way funds, etc., and indirect costs include such items as estimated cost of cataloging books, management consultations, etc.

Transaction unit cost is measured by dividing the number of circulations of library materials and the number of viewers per film into the total expenditures. Yearly circulation totaled 11,128 in library materials. This actually covers the period February through December, 1975, since January was a month given over entirely to organization. Film programming did not begin until April, which again somewhat skews our "annual" total. Films were shown on 109 separate occasions to a total viewing audience of 1354 individuals, each averaging 12.4 people. However, 184 films were actually shown which raises the total number of viewing individuals to 2,606. By adding the total materials circulation figure of 11,128 and the total viewing individuals figure of 2,606, we arrive at a total of 13,734 service transactions. When this figure is divided into our expenditure of $24,315.97 we arrive at a service unit cost of $1.76 for the year.

Costs for the second year of operation would be considerably lower. There would be no large expenditures for such items as large print books and other materials and equipment which had to be bought initially. A projected second year budget would total $21,101.80, including again both direct and indirect costs. By averaging the film and materials circulation totals for the last three calendar months and projecting that average over a period of twelve months, we would estimate 22,250 service transactions. This would lower the cost per transaction to 95¢. Considering that this does not include the potential for circulation growth, the cost could be considerably lower.

Outreach programs are generally considered to be expensive, at least more so than in-house programs. An average cost of $1.76 in Senior Awareness' initial year with a projected cost of 95¢ or lower for the second year should give pause to those libraries rejecting outreach programs out of hand as economically untenable. If Pawtucket's experience is any guide at all, many libraries are missing the boat.

Sensitive Service to Seniors

Stephanie Kirkes Cranston Library

The "Sensitive Service to Seniors" program held at and sponsored by the Pawtucket Public Library attracted a large number of people who work with the elderly, including some non-librarians. Sylvia Zaki, an instructor at Rhode Island College, spoke first and told the audience that we should, in dealing with anyone, regardless of age, recognize that the person is a unique individual. We should not lump all elderly people together, but rather consider each person a different human being. She then went on to detail for us the factors that influence an older person and which we should consider in our service to them. An older person's bodily functions and processes slow down, i.e. hearing and moving, and the body image changes drastically, with the result that an older person tends to dwell on his health. Their nutritional status changes, often because an older person, living alone, doesn't want to bother with cooking and preparing meals for one person and will live on bread, crackers and other easy to eat food. The "chronic organic brain syndrome", often called senility, is the result of a lowered oxygen supply to the brain and can be alleviated by exercise and deep breathing. Disengagement occurs with the person starting to separate himself, isolating himself from others as the possibility of death becomes closer and as his friends and family members die. Many older people do not face death realistically but if they could live each day as if it were the last, it would improve their ability to face the reality of death and be gracious about it. Another important factor is living on a fixed income, a very difficult situation. Because of the change in economic status, many activities are limited and curtailed, activities which are sorely needed to provide meaning and the sparks of interest. Mobility is affected and the lack of it will further the person's isolation. Family and friends may ignore the older person and ship him off to a nursing home to get him out of the way. Whether in a nursing home or not, a big problem facing the older person is how to fill in all the hours of the day. This is one area where librarians may be very helpful, both in providing materials and services.

Lina Lumb, a clinical social worker from the Institute of Mental Health, spoke next and told us about the therapy they are using at the IMH. It is called "Reality Therapy" and is detailed in a book of the same title by William Glasser. This therapy does not accept the concept of mental illness, but focuses on irregular behavior. A common cause for this irregular behavior is lack of one or both of our two basic needs: to love and to be loved and made to feel worthwhile. The denial of some or all of reality is common to the patients at IMH and so the first step in the therapy is the involvement of the therapist or social worker with the patient. As librarians faced with dealing with irregular behavior by some of our patrons, we should try to act as a friend to these disruptive people. If the person continues to misbehave, we should tell him that his conduct is not appropriate to a library. If he persists we should ask him to leave, but to come back when he is ready to act properly in the library. D. Donahue, the librarian at the IMH, spoke to us about her patrons in the library, which was set up to serve elderly patients, most of whom are quite eccentric. Inappropriate behavior must be dealt with immediately before it can escalate. The patients need to be treated as adults, not as "older people". They should be encouraged to become a part of the library environment, to use the library and its materials. It is demonstrated to them that they are expected to read in the library, not behave in a disruptive fashion.

Will Speck, the Community Coordinator of the Division on Aging, told us about the many programs that the Division sponsors for persons 60 years of age and older. There exists a variety of resources available in the fields of transportation, housing, meals, health care and entertainment, most of which are contained within a small pamphlet published by the Division on Aging called "Pocket Manual of Senior Services" which is being updated right now and is available to any library.

We would all agree, I think, on the need for service to seniors, and I would hope that we would not neglect this segment of our population, but would increase our service in any possible way.

GALLIMAUFRY

The Pawtucket Public Library and Regional Center is requesting a 38 % increase in the funds it receives from the city of Pawtucket. Within this increase is a $4,000 request that would provide for a reorganization plan. The library currently has one Director, one Assistant Director and four coordinators. Under the reorganization plan the Pawtucket Library would have one Director, two Assistant Directors and five coordinators.

The Central Falls Public Library is currently planning a branch library at a nearby community center. This would be designed to serve the elderly, young adults and children. It would seat eight persons and hold approximately 2,000 volumes.

Why not handle your foreign affairs domestically?

There is no need to rely on one subscription agency for your domestic periodicals and another for your foreign. The F. W. Faxon Company is an international subscription agency handling periodicals from around the world. (We presently list over 8,000 foreign titles and are constantly adding more.) Now you can place one order for all your periodicals - domestic and foreign - and receive one annual invoice.

Our Foreign Department translates foreign correspondence, keeps up-to-date with the changing status of foreign currencies, and maintains up-to-the-minute records on foreign publication frequencies.

Use Faxon's expertise. You'll find there's no language barrier at Faxon.

ON CAPITOL HILL...
HOUSE VOTES TO EXTEND LSCA

- Media Write March, 1976

378 to 7--- An overwhelming victory for libraries. On February 17, the U. S. House of Representatives voted to extend the Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA) for another five years.

In urging his colleagues on both sides of the floor to approve HR 11233 Congressman John Brademas, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Select Education and principal sponsor of the bill, stated, "Today when our libraries are in financial trouble, the Federal Government must not shirk its responsibility to continue its support."

However, Title II (construction) is merely authorized "such sums as may be necessary" for the next 3 years. HR 11233 authorizes increasing sums for the next 3 years under Titles I and III.

Although the Ford and Nixon Administrations have been hostile to library support and have repeatedly tried to cut federal assistance, Congress has consistently rejected these efforts and given its bipartisan vote to share the costs of library services with local and state governments. Congress took this decisive action in spite of the President's Fiscal 1977 Budget Recommendation which proposed zero funding for LSCA. A veto is probable. But with the healthy House vote and an expected wide margin in concurrence by the Senate, an override of a presidential veto is not unlikely. As always, nothing of this kind can be assumed. Let your senators and representatives know how you feel.

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC SERIALS SUBSCRIPTION SERVICE TO ALL TYPES AND SIZES OF LIBRARIES

COMPREHENSIVENESS

EBSCO services periodicals, newspapers, annuals, yearbooks, irregular book/monographic series (numbered or unnumbered) and continuations. Our computerized price file lists over 100,000 titles. However, we gladly research any title ordered and do not expect the customer to provide publisher name and address. Our research cycle is thorough and provides a quick answer if we are unable to identify the publisher. We service titles from all nations of the world. The only titles we cannot (normally) service for you are order direct by the publisher's requirement. (However, if you are a librarian who desires to place 100 per cent of all serials with a single agency, we can handle even the order direct publishers for you).

FLEXIBILITY

We believe what we do for you and how we do it should be determined by your needs. We have suggested procedures and formats. Our order processing and records are computerized and we are able to employ our computer to service any special request you may have. In the event you have a request which a computer, for some reason, cannot honor, we keep our typewriters handy and a perfect willingness to do whatever is necessary to suit your needs.

PERSONALIZED SERVICE

Order control is located at our regional office. Each of our customers is assigned to one Customer Service representative, so there is consistency in communications.
