Diversity Week At URI
Tuesday and Wednesday, October 6 and 7, 1998
University of Rhode Island

Purpose of Diversity Week: To foster the development of strategies and skills involved in the building of a sense of community. To broaden our understanding of campus, regional, domestic, and international diversity as a community-building strategy. To affirm the importance of diversity and community at URI.

Criteria for Proposals: Priority will be given to program proposals which are engaging and interactive. Proposals from faculty, students, staff, and off-campus agencies are welcomed. Proposal topics may be related to scholarly research, teaching, and or outreach service. The goal of workshops should be to assist participants in developing practical skills, strategies, understanding and insight, and/or to introduce participants to resources with follow-up opportunities. The goal of poster sessions is to display resource materials, information, and ideas in a lively and creative way for the perusal of participants. The display must be staffed.

Proposed program topic: Coming Out: The Research, The Reality

Proposed program title: Coming Out: The Research, The Reality

Program abstract: (If necessary attach a detailed description):

^{Current} Research will be presented, by Al Lott, on the stages of "coming out" for gay men + lesbians, as well as how coming out affects them. These individual gays + lesbians will speak of their coming out experiences, followed by questions from the audience.

Last year audience members had many questions + we (the H + H committee) feel there is need for this forum.

Adria Evans will facilitate this discussion + presentation.

DEADLINE: Friday, March 6, 1998.

Return proposals or direct questions to Paul Bueno de Mesquita, Psychology Dept., Chafee 306, 874-4216.
