R. O. T. C. Battalion Features Parade

R. I. S. C. Unit One of the Most Colorful in Procession

Armistice Day the Rhode Island State College Battalion led by its band presented a colorful addition to the parade at Wakefield. The battalion, 492 men strong, paraded in a column of squads. The R. O. T. C. band led the battalion and presented a fine appearance in their snappy uniforms. The battalion followed the East Greenwich Kentish Guards.

The unit entrained by trucks and buses at Aggie Hall and detrained at the Wakefield High School where the parade was formed. The course of the parade followed Columbia Street to Kingstown Road, through Peace Dale, along High Street and Main Street back to its starting point. The battalion then marched to the Peace Dale railroad station where it entrained for Kingston.

The color bearers were George Tyler and Everett Collins, and the color guards were Sylvester Capalbo and Charles Thum.

The guidon bearers of the four companies were: Company A, William Dolan; Company B, Gilbert Fahy; Company C, Robert March, and Company D, Robert Stafford.

The parade was the largest in the history of Wakefield and was attended by many hundreds of people among whom was Governor Norman Case.

The principal event of the day was the unveiling of a memorial to the soldier dead of South Kingstown.

Biological Society Now Reorganized

Society Established to Promote Appreciation of Science

The biological society has been re-established here at Rhode Island after being dissolved for a time. It was formerly one of the most prominent groups on the campus. The membership has increased this year to about 50 students. Last year trips were made to various state institutions, including a trip to Howard Medical School.

This year it has been planned to have a noted speaker once a month to talk on various biological and related subjects. It is the aim of the society to organize in such a way that it will have a high standard among the organizations of the campus. The purpose of the society is to promote a better understanding and appreciation of the biological sciences.

The officers are: President, Frank Adimari; vice president, Ruth Nelen; secretary, Eloise Burns; treasurer, Berrard Beau-doin.

Frats to Have House Dances

Al Rosen's Band and Bill Bailey's Boys to Furnish Music

Alpha Epsilon Pi will hold its fall formal house dance on Nov. 23, Thanksgiving Eve. The patrons and patronesses are President and Mrs. Bressler, and the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Rawlings.

This year Milton Furberg with the aid of J. M. Koppe, Louis Yaffee and David Levitt will run the formal. Al Rosen and his orchestra

Sororities Give Pledge Dances

Sigma and ΔZ Honor Pledges at Annual Fall Informal

Delta Zeta held its first dance of the year in honor of this year's pledges. The house was decorated with autumn leaves and pine. The patrons and patronesses included Dr. and Mrs. Browning, Mr. and Mrs. Robert DeWolf, Mr. and Mrs. Odland, Miss Mabel Dickson, and Dr. Irving Churchill.

Miss Virginia Cooper was chairman of the committee while the other members included Miss Helen Soule, Miss Barbara Spaulding, Miss Janet Macomber and Miss Lynette Goggin.

The green and grey of marine depths was the theme in decorations at the Sigma Kappa house dance. Fish, from sea-horses to whales, swam on the walls, while limber octopuses hung from the seaweed near the surface of the sea. The fall house dance honored the pledges of the sorority. Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, Mr. Donald Sternes, and Miss Hope Jillson were patrons and patronesses at the informal. Lillian Clark was general chairman.

Co-Ed Sports

With the advent of winter, the women's hockey season, which has just been at its height, is drawing to a close. Out of the three games played so far, our varsity has won one game from the Y. W. C. A. of Providence, has tied it for the second game, and has lost the other game to the Connecticut Aggies. Another game with the Connecticut Aggies will mark the close of the season. The game will be played here Saturday at 12:30 p. m. The lineup will be: Ruth Stone, Mary Van Benschoten or Evelyn Miani, Helen Baker, Stella Wells, Charlotte Waters, Dorothy Fletcher, Vera Rock, either Margaret Coone, Irene Miller or Elizabeth Thomas, Ruth Nelen, Louise Keeler and Mary Hersey for goal.

Class practices will be held this week and next, and the class games will soon be played.

The women's rifle squad, which has been practicing only for a short while, is composed of forty-eight members. Challenges have been received from the University of Maryland, Carnegie Tech and the University of California. As soon as the team is chosen, the challenges will probably be accepted.

With the close of the hockey season, the girls will soon be turning to basketball. Not many games have been scheduled as yet, but we are sure of games with the Y. W. C. A. of Providence and the Connecticut Aggies. Games are being negotiated with Posse Nissen in Boston, and Pembroke.

Conn. Game Ends With a 19-19 Tie

Rams Lead by 13 Points at Half But Fail to Hold Aggies

Rhode Island battled their traditional rivals, Connecticut Agricultural College, to a 19 to 19 tie in their annual football game at Storrs Saturday afternoon. Coming from behind with a belated last half rally, the Aggies overcame a 13-point lead to tie the Rams in one of the most sensational contests ever played between the two rivals.

Rhody stepped into an early lead in the first period when Bud Fisher plunged through for the first touchdown. A few moments later, however, the Aggies climbed back into the ball game and the teams rolled into the second quarter with the score tied at 6 all.

Once again in the second period the Keaney men displayed real flashes of power and twice scored touchdowns. The first of these tallies came as the result of a blocked Aggie punt with Fisher crossing the goal line with his second touchdown. Late in the half Sylvester Capalbo blocked another Connecticut punt, and fell on the ball behind the goal line to give the Rams a 19 to 6 lead as the half ended.

The Aggies, outplayed by a wide margin in the first half, finally came to life in the second half and literally swept the Rams before them, to climb back into the battle. Early in the third period they scored their second touchdown and converted the extra point and then in the final quarter staged a 37-yard march for the tying score. Their drive for the touchdown was aided by a 15-yard penalty against State, but after they had pushed over their score, the attempted place-kick for the winning point was blocked by a wild surge of Rhody linemen.

Prexy and Deans Attend Convention

School Heads Delegates to State College Conference

The heads of the various schools of Rhode Island State College will be delegates to the annual meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities, opening a three-day session Tuesday morning, Nov. 15.

Prof. Adams, dean of the School of Agriculture, will preside at a conference of the Northeastern Association of Extension Directors, and Dr. Odland will read a paper before the American Society of Agronomy, his subject being, "The Effect of One Crop Upon Succeeding Crops." Dr. Basil E. Gilbert will later attend a meeting of the National Grange at Winston-Salem.

Others to attend the Land Grant Association meeting are President Raymond G. Bressler, Dean Royal L. Wales, Dean Margaret Wittemore and Prof. Fred Crardall, Prof. Adam North, Prof. L. E. Erwin, and Prof. Harold C. Knoblauch of the Experiment Station.

Miss Wittemore is chairman of the division of Home Economics this year.

R. I. Fencing Club Arranges Schedule

Intercollegiate as Well as Interfraternity Matches Planned

This year witnesses the introduction of another sport at Rhode Island State. Fencing, the new sport, has been called along with horse racing, the sport of kings. We start this year with a very strong team which is composed of David Dick, P. Dawson and Robert Hardy. The coach is Jack Katz, a former high school star.

An ambitious program has been mapped out for the embryo swordsmen and includes Storrs, Y. M. C. A., Ardover and some high schools.

It is planned to give exhibition bouts between the halves of the basketball games. At present practice is being held daily from four to five in the basement of East Hall.

David Dick, one of the members of the team, is the former fencing champion of Providence for two consecutive years, while Dawson was the captain of Technical High fencing team.

The team at present lacks funds and proper equipment. It is hoped that if enough become interested in the sport that a room may be secured for it at the gymnasium and that a regular coach versed in the art through long training may be secured.

Mayor Sullivan at Assembly

Newport's Mayor Gives Entertaining Talk on "Loyalty"

The students of the college were quite fortunate this week in hearing a very interesting and inspiring talk given by Mayor Mortimer Sullivan of Newport. His subject was "Loyalty," and the interesting and entertaining way in which he expanded his talk made the weekly assembly lecture a source of enjoyment for every student present. He expressed his view on our military conditions quite clearly by these words, "I favor compulsory military training in all the schools of the United States, not for the purpose of aggressive war nor for the purpose of preventing war, but for the purpose of maintaining peace." Mayor Sullivan also expressed his interpretation of the word "loyalty," its meaning and usefulness in our schools, colleges, and country.

Mayor Sullivan's speech varied from the usual run of assembly talks in the fact that he spent the first half of his time in relating jokes and experiences which immediately put the audience at ease and in a jovial mood. From the enthusiastic applause of the students it seems that the talk was enjoyed by all, and it is hoped that the college in the future will invite more speakers like Mayor Sullivan.

The Mayor's talk was preceded by three selections offered by the Girl's Glee Club, under the able direction of Miss Julia Gould. The first public appearance of the Glee Club proved highly successful and was fully appreciated by all.

Ramlets Score Over Conn. Frosh

Preliminary to Varsity Tussle Ends With a 7-0 Victory

The Rhode Island State Freshmen closed their season with a 7-0 victory in their annual tussle with the Connecticut Agricultural College, at Storrs, Conn., last Saturday.

Setting a good example for the varsity, the Ramlets in the preliminary game, played "heads up" football for four quarters and at no time were they in a dangerous position to be scored upon by the Frosh Aggies.

During the first three periods, the play "see-sawed" up and down the field with the ball, for the most part, in the Aggie territory. With the substitution of "Walt" Anstey, a halfback, during the second period, the backfield seemed to take on a new lease of life.

An attack, starting at Connecticut's 40-yard line during the last four minutes of play, ended with State scoring. This attack was featured by a 25-yard run by Anstey, and was climaxed by a line plunge by "Dutchie" Rembert. The extra point was tallied by a pass from Rembert to Anstey. Charlie Trumpetto, "Maurie" Mantenuto, and Joe Ratenberg were among the Ramlets' shining lights.

THE WORLD WAR

This war started in Europe in 1914, due to the activities of some German politicians who wanted the French vote. An Austrian Archduke was killed in a small Serbian town—the town was so small that they kept half a horse in the museum with the expectation that when the town became larger, they would get another half horse and have a one-horse town—and the Germans seized upon this cause to march their troops into France. The French troops were cleverly marched to where the Germans were not; the Germans marched through Belgium, and England entered the war—ad infinitum.

For three years the United States remained neutral, and the famous congressional brains idled along producing their usual quantity of hot air. Then someone shifted into first and stepped on the gas. In April, 1917, America awoke to the German menace and called the flower of American youth to preserve Democracy, keep the colors of our flag unsullied, protect the honor of American women, fight a war to end war and preserve liberty and justice. (Historical note: There have been twenty-five wars fought since the Armistice.)

In May, 1917, the Selective Service Act was passed. The name of every man in the country was put in a hat (ten gallon) and the President reached his hand in and drew out a name. The unfortunate possessor of the name had to go to war unless he was lucky enough to be suffering from astigmatism, bacterium coli, or athlete's foot, or a healthy prejudice against war.

On July 4, 1917, the first American troops were exhibited in France. American ships were busy transporting troops and materials to the front—which everyone talked about and where no one wanted to be. In December Congress called for an investigation of the War Department. In January, President received a birthday cake and appointed a committee to look into it.

Study Frosh

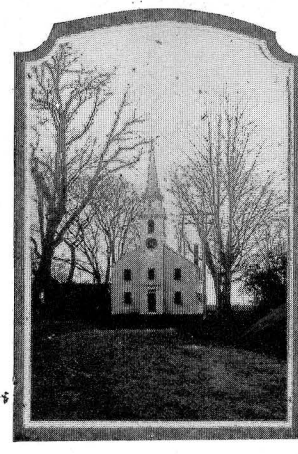

For the last few weeks there have been various things to claim our attention, with elections, both national and domestic. It seems that now is the time, when everything is at a standstill, to get back to the books.

We older members of the student body realize that as the quarter nears, and consequently reports, this is the time to get down to studying, to check up on ourselves, and to remedy our own personal situations.

While most of us abhor and are disgusted with the proverbial "grind," yet it is that self-same person that we must now attempt to imitate. It is his self-confidence that compels us secretly to admire and envy him.

The hour comes when we seek aid of the book-worm, and he gladly gives his assistance, knowing how foolish we perhaps have been. It takes only a year of college life to learn that lesson.

So, having had a little more experience in the line of preparedness than the first yearlings, we urge them especially to take account of stock right at this moment, to study hard, and thus accomplish the end for which they should strive—not merely marks, but acquisition of knowledge and self-development.

Institute of Art Adjourns

The three-day Institute of Art, which was sponsored by Brown University and the Rhode Island School of Design, adjourned last Sunday after achieving the most gratifying results. Honorary degrees were conferred upon three outstanding patrons of the arts. Oliver LaFarge, the youngest of the three men, is a Rhode Islander. Mr. LaFarge, whose novel "Laughing Boy" won the Pulitzer Prize, was presented with the Master of Arts degree. Walter Damrosch, a figure of note for more than 30 years in the musical art, was honored with the degree of Doctor of Music. The third degree was conferred upon Mr. Henry Watson Kent, who was made a Doctor of Art. President Clarence A. Barbour cited Mr. Kent for his services as secretary of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Hoover-Roosevelt May Meet

Confronted with the requests from Great Britain and France for a release in meeting the debt payments which are due next month, President Hoover has invited President-elect Roosevelt to join him at the White House next week for a conference regarding the existing conditions. Great Britain regards the proposals as a business-like proposition in which everybody is interested. The problem is one of most serious nature, and the plan for assisting these countries will be anticipated by nations the world over.

to guard bridges that the enemy had never heard of, from spies that didn't exist. The number of marriages in this country increased tremendously because American Youth looked better in uniform.

The Germans in France, realizing that the bulk of 4,000,000 Americans would soon be in action, started an offensive with Paris in view. For a time it looked as if they would reach the city, but several companies of American Infantry were thrown into the gap and we won the war.

The work of American nurses is to be commended. One nurse (the B. V. D. type—Beautiful—very dumb) while lifting a wounded German into a stretcher, heard him murmur, "Wasser? Wasser?" "No," she replied in her college German, "Rhode Island State."

On November 11, 1918, an Armistice was signed. The war did not end officially until several years later. At the Versailles Peace Treaty Conference a Peace was signed which reduced Germany to a minor standing among other nations. At this conference all women were excluded because the Hall of Mirrors was too much for them and many wore out two and three powder puffs per day before the edict against them went into effect.

"The first of the month" used to be a time of feverish activity for ledger clerks. But the Bell System accounting staff—breaking away from tradition—simplified the keeping of accounts and rendering of monthly statements to customers.

They applied a modern system of rotation billing to the telephone business which now spreads this work evenly throughout the month. In cooperation with manufacturers, they devised special typewriters and bookkeeping machines. Thus they did away with inefficient rush and achieved greater accuracy, speed and neatness.

This is but one example of a point of view found throughout the Bell System. Even long accepted routine is constantly studied—it's always worth looking for the more efficient way!

Manse Scene of Hot Discussion

Charles Cloudman Leads Discussion Upon Convention

The discussion at the Manse last Sunday night was led by Mr. Charles Cloudman of the class of '28. The topic of discussion was, "Conventions — What Value Are They to Society?" After quoting several definitions of convention, Mr. Cloudman burst forth into oratorical language well worth being quoted. Mr. Cloudman stated: "The conventions of everyday life may be questioned whether they actually are conventions or just courtesies." He discussed at large the necessity of some conventions especially those in the arts and sciences. As an example, he took the symbolical expressions in geometry. He also referred to the physical sciences and expressions in music.

The most interesting part of the discussion was some of "The Lost Conventions of Our Own Campus." Mr. Cloudman said that when he was an undergraduate it was the Old Spanish Custom (convention if you prefer) to walk on the walks and roads at all times and not to cut across the campus as is done today, even by Freshmen if they think they will not be seen. It seems a common practice to let the door of the various entrances slam in your face, especially when you have your arms full of books, where a few years ago it was common courtesy or at least conventional to hold the door for persons following. Another item which brought forth much discussion was Honesty. Mr. Cloudman believes that the proverbial "cribbing" is all right if the ultimate good derived is greater than the bad. But on the other hand, if a college were to allow such a standard it would cause unlimited harm.

A solution was expressed for the present unemployment. Mr. Cloudman prescribed dividing the people into classes and those of the lowest class to serve as slaves in order to have somebody to take care of them. In fact, very many who are incapable of caring for themselves can be cared for by their superiors. Mr. Cloudman offers the question: "Is democracy the correct form of government? Is not a system of superior and inferior people a better system? In this way all dependent people will be taken care of in time of need."

The discussion broke up into two well defined groups, one discussing conventional clothing, and the other conventional etiquette on the campus.

Phi Mu Defeats A E Pi, 4 to 0

Leavitt, Majestic in Effort, Gets Three Box to Tie

The Interfraternity Bowling League was started on its schedule by the teams from A. E. Pi and Phi Mu Delta. Phi Mu won the match on a foul committed in the last box. It was found that Harry Tietz was lying on his back behind the pins with a rake. Despite this the boys from "Phi Mu" won the first two strings and tied the third 560-560. That third string was truly one of the most colorful anyone could wish to see.

It was the last box. Leavitt was twirling. As he stepped before the audience (Skeets Soloveitzik and John Waugh) he glanced confidently at the sheet and added the strings, found he owed thirty cents. Disgusted at his carelessness he growled as he picked up the cutest ball he could find and sent it smoking down the alley. It connected with the back of the pit all alone. Putting on his very best sheepish look he shot another ball shrieking over the polished surface which passed the pins on the left. Biting the back of his neck, with his back to the wall, a majestic figure, with both balls in the gutter, he rocketed a third pellet into the wood of victory or defeat. Three pins fell and Soloveitzik swallowed his store teeth. But where was Tietz? Thus he was found with the rake and Phi Mu Delta received the decision, 4-0.

For the evening Greaves was high man with strings of 108, 112, 131.

(Continued from Page 1) State threatened to score in the final minutes of the game but the embattled Dolemen thwarted every charge, and when the final whistle blew the Rams were in a position to again cross the Aggie goal line. Bud Fisher and Sylvester Capalbo were the shining lights on the Ram team while Cronin and Pierce were outstanding for the Aggies.

Bystander

Well, here I've been looking all over for a good looking co-ed who is a brunette and she's been right in front of me for weeks; and so, here's my nomination for the best looking brunette on the campus, Marjorie Aspinwall.

Can you believe it? I've heard of someone who actually said she liked this column. Therefore, I'm taking this opportunity of thanking her for her compliment. Thank you, Libby Kidder. (Personally I think she's living up to her last name—that "Kidder.")

Have you heard about the student who after having his rifle inspected, was told the barrel was dirty? After receiving the rifle from the officer he looked through the barrel and said: "You're a liar; it's clean."

(They carried the officer off the field in a dead faint.)

Best joke I've read in ages. Excerpt from the "Brown Jug."
She: "You remind me of Nero."
He: "Why?"
She: "Here I'm burning up and you're fiddling around."

The "Bystander" had a most enjoyable week-end. After holding hands with her for almost three hours, I don't know whether she was doing it for protection, the "Bystander" thought it was about time to leave; since he could make no impression upon her. Nevertheless, Dot, I had a most enjoyable evening.

(The above paragraph may sound a bit twisted to the readers of it, but one person will understand; and she is all that counts.)

How would you like to see: Co-eds going to classes a la Mahatma Gandhi? (At the rate they are going now, the Mahatma won't have much on them.)

Classes suspended every Monday so students could recuperate from their week-ends?

"Strange Interlude" as an assembly presentation?

Your courses illustrated by movies?

Your girl beg for a kiss?

For weeks and weeks I've been wondering how one can tell if he, or she, is in love. I once thought I was in love — yep, and she laughed at me. Won't some of these "married" couples on the campus tell me why they think they are in love?

"The Bystander" lost an election bet and being an honorable person he will live up to his part of the agreement. However, Mary, I won't take you to dinner until next summer.

(Try starving for a few days and then you won't be surprised at the meal I'll order for you—it will probably consist of a glass of water, a straw, and a side order of toothpicks.)

Can you imagine a "scandal sheet" printed and sold right here on the campus every week? Perhaps it would read like this:

Among those seen co-edding Monday night were: _____

(And further on)

Those seen at Thirty Acres during the intermission of the Aggie Brawl were: _____

Those seen in the vicinity of the gym last night were: _____

(Fill in the blanks yourself.)

It looks like some of the eds are seriously considering the organization of a field hockey team. If one were to walk along the college road when the co-eds are practicing, they would see a make-shift team, composed of all the nice boys in the neighborhood acting as prize su----- (fill in the spaces). One of them went around limping for a few days; some girl thought his ankle was the ball. That's what I call "dying for Alma Mater."

If this column sounds a bit queer, and doesn't make much sense, (did I hear someone say it never makes sense?) please excuse it. You see, I had a very trying week-end and have not recovered, as yet. (If I see her again, I know that I'll never be able to write another column.)

Hogs have been flying high for some time and now even pig-iron is soaring.—Washington Post.

The college paper at the Kansas State College has taken to publishing a "black list" in which are contained the names of all their profs who keep their classes after the dismissal bell has rung. I wonder how many profs could be garnered for such a list here at Rhode Island State College.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE SEA WOLF

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the noted artist, N. C. Wyeth... inspired by the infamous Captain Kidd's fierce raids on the gold-laden Spanish galleons (1696), which made him the scourge of the Spanish Main. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.
