Assessment of:

- Suitability of existing library resources;
- New library resources required to support the program;
- Information skills education required by the students; and
- Funds needed for library materials and services.

Please include:

1. What library holdings already exist in relevant subject categories. How much money is now allocated in the subject area?

The libraries hold many current publications of relevance to this course. We have monographic and journal collections extending into the past, which may be of help for some of the research assignments for this course. The 2018-19 allocation for monographs for Education is approximately $5,000. The cost of subscriptions is not broken out by department or college.

2. Does URI have the essential journals as noted in the Faculty Questionnaire?

There are no essential journals, beyond those we already subscribe to, noted in the Faculty Questionnaire.

3. What new resources are required to support the course (including media, electronic, or other non-print materials)?

No new library resources are required to support this course.

4. What information mastery sessions will be required for the students?

There are no information mastery sessions required for the students. At the PhD level, many students already have familiarity with the literature in the field and the means for searching for information in that field. Should any student require assistance, we are happy to provide one-on-one instruction or instruction for a group.

5. What is the approximate cost to acquire the materials necessary? Which of these will be continuing costs?

There are no new costs to the library for the support of this course.
