Student Senate Rejects SDA Request for Money

by Barbara Huppee

The Student Senate upheld the recommendation of the tax committee Monday night and voted against allocating funds to the Students for Democratic Action organization (SDA). Senator Julie Lepper, tax committee chairman, said the committee felt that SDA was a "political action organization" and therefore not eligible for Student Senate funds.

According to the Student Senate Tax Committee Constitution, "No organization may participate in Student Activities Tax if it is a political action organization." The committee, therefore, felt that SDA was ineligible for funds.

President Chris Walsh of SDA, who asked the Senate to define political action, and to prove that SDA is a politically active organization and the Student Senate is not.

In answer to Mr. Walsh, Senator Howard Kilberg said that a political action group might be one that "voices its opinion on world and national topics by protesting."

Senator Walsh said that SDA is "just not voicing its opinion or educating people in different views."

Senator Michael Finkle pointed out that it was not up to the tax committee to constitute an organization in allocating funds.

He also stated that SDA's constitution is out of order in that there are no elected positions. "The constitution states that there should be," he said.

SDA's connection with the picketing of Dow Chemical was brought up by Senator Fred Tobin.

"SDA did distribute pamphlets calling for a demonstration against Dow Chemical," he said. "It's true that they were distributed by a student who was suspended by the disciplinary board for theft."

Mr. Tobin also asked if SDA officially sponsored the picketing.

Mr. Walsh said that the picketing was privately paid for.

Pool Assails Protestors, Campus Underground Press

by Brad Johnson

"I hope it makes them stop and think," is how Congressman Joseph R. Pool, Democrat from Texas, explained why he appears before hostile college audiences.

He visited the URI campus Monday evening, read a ten-minute speech, then spent 30 minutes juggling questions from about 15 of the 400 people in the Memorial Union Ballroom.

In his speech broken several times by light, sporadic applause and muffled comments, Mr. Pool blasted those persons who resist the draft.

"These hard core community members have taken advantage of student idealism in order to promote their goals," he charged. "They hope to subvert the draft laws of the United States in order to undermine, obstruct, and hinder us, the people of America, in the effort to assist the people of Vietnam." The representative stated.

He singled out the underground press on college campuses, for the second barrage of criticism.

"The plan of this underground press syndicate is to take advantage of that part of the First Amendment which protects newspapers and gives them freedom of the press."

To strains of laughter and applause, the congressman added: "These smut sheets are (Continued on page 10)
A ‘Just War’ is Topic of Dr. William Martin’s Talk

Dr. William O. Martin, chairman of the university philosophy department, said in a lecture last week sponsored by the Young Americans for Freedom that a nation can have peace only if it exercises its right to defend itself against its aggressors.

Dr. Martin’s speech was on the concept of a just war, an old concept, he said, that can still be used to analyze a nation’s justification for going to war.

A just war, Dr. Martin continued, must be based on a sincere intention by a government to defend its rights against any foreign element who threatens the security or against any foreign element who threatens the rights of the people. In this way, the people are denied their right to dissent, and are subject to the whim of an absolute government.

‘Physical violence can be good’ he continued. He then gave the example of the policeman who shoots a murderess. The policeman has performed a good service through use of physical violence.

Living under Communist rule, Dr. Martin continued, is also to be subject to mental violence. In a Communist society, based on atheism and materialism, the people are denied the right to dissent and are brainwashed into accepting the absolute government.

Thus Dr. Martin believes that we have a right to use physical violence to defend ourselves against Communism and therefore have a just right to be in Vietnam.

“Communism is a serious menace—if it were not, we should get out of Vietnam,” he concluded.

Cambridge Grads Debate Flower Power Philosophy

The URI Debate Union presented a public-invited debate last Tuesday on the proposition: “Resolved that flower power is a just war.” The debate proceeded in a tongue-in-cheek atmosphere.

Two of the participants were from England, Nicholas Wall and Andrew Parrish, two English graduates of Cambridge University.

Two Students In Accident Suffer Minor Injuries

Two students were injured Saturday afternoon in a three-car accident at the intersection of Route 138 and Lower College Road.

Jen Yeh, 19, of 18 Brown St., Narragansett, complained of a bruised shoulder but refused treatment. His wife Susan Yeh suffered whiplash injuries. Joan Medeiros, 19, the driver of the second vehicle, was not injured. Miss Medeiros, a sophomore living in Weldin Hall, said she skidded while making the turn onto Lower College Road and struck the Yeh’s car.

Language Dept. Offers Year Abroad; Spanish MA

The newest development in the department of languages, according to Dr. Henry Capasso, chairman of the department, is the program for the Master of Arts in Spanish.

Just begun, the M.A. degree can be given in Spanish Literature, Hispanic-American Literature, or Literature of the Spanish speaking world. In each area, qualifying exams are required in the history and literature of particular authors, and in works and the language itself.

Presently, majors are offered in French, German, Italian and Spanish while minors are available in Russian and Latin. Latin was offered for the first time this year with the hiring of a full time instructor. Dr. Capasso said he hoped for a Major in the Classics as well as Russian in the future.

However, he stressed that no extension of the present programs will take place until the department has developed to offer complete and not mediocre programs. This depends upon the size of the staff and library which depend upon budget allotments.

Also planned is a program for spending the junior year abroad in France. A committee under Dr. Harold Waters, associate professor of French, hopes the program will begin in 1969. Still in the talking stages is a similar program for a year abroad in Spain.

Concerning developments within the elementary courses for those beginning a language at URI, Dr. Capasso spoke of an increase in the class hours a week. He believes that four or five hours instead of the present three would improve the curriculum.

NYAC Relay

The URI mile relay team, including a strong second leg by Charlie McGinnis, edged Seton Hall in the New England Track Club meet last Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

Bohy led off at the start while John Raos opened the second leg. But McGinnis, trailing the leader by about 20 yards at the half mile, ran a speedy 50.6, took the lead by about a yard at the halfway mark.

Dan Kelly, with a 51.5 leg, and Peter Goff, with a 51.4, held the lead the rest of the way for the Rams. Benson finished about a yard in front of Seton Hall.

Rams Defeat Maine

The URI basketball team upset its Yankee Conference rivals with an easy 98-51 victory over Maine last Saturday night at Providence.

Ron Bodi, leading 21-20 at the undercard mark of the first half, the Rams then began to stretch their margin, and as a result, left the floor at halftime with a 47-34 lead.

And they never looked back as they dropped in 12 points and grabbed 22 rebounds for the Rams.

Vaughn Speaks of Peace Corps As Domestic Policy

NEW YORK (PCPI) Peace Corps Director, John Vaughan, said today that Volunteers serve no one “establishment,” but 37 separate overseas host country establishments where the agency operates rather than consider the Peace Corps as an instrument of foreign policy.

Vaughn said in a speech at Columbia University, “I think it is more correct to say that it is an instrument of domestic policy in 54 nations.”

The 13,000 Volunteers overseas, he said, represent no policy except that which they were invited to serve — no establishment except the 37 which invited them.

Vaughn said he won’t discuss the Peace Corps program for Kenya, for Malaysia, or for Colombia.

“...There will be, we hope, a Kenya program for the Peace Corps, a Malaysia Peace Corps, a Colombia Peace Corps,” he said. “If we perform well, there will be 37 Peace Corps programs. None of these programs will be dictated by elements of an American government, or an American business, or a political party.”

He said that Volunteers still tend to dismiss in their minds the idea of the Peace Corps as an institution, or as a government agency.

“...They appear to bypass the structure and identify with the spirit — in the literal American outlet through which they ‘become the very best that is within them to become,’” Vaughan said. “I believe that this aspiration is the model for successive non-bureaucracies of the future.”

Uninformed

Congressman Joe Pool, last Monday, told an audience of URI students and guests that he was uninformed concerning the John Birch Society, the Nuremburg Trials, and a variety of other topics and groups. This may not seem so unusual at first hearing, but when one considers he is a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, it becomes a ludicrous, yet tragic situation.

When one begins to consider that he might be a representative of a typical U.S. elected official, the situation becomes a nightmare that this country may soon have to face.

Perhaps at the root of the problem is the continued belief of the American people that anyone can be a “good” representative. To assume a representative can be uninformed and function adequately in today’s government is to similarly assume that a cavern could walk into a nuclear laboratory and proceed in its use without difficulty.

Yet, from what was obvious to all who attended Rep. Joe Pool’s Lecture, this is the case. The state of our nation must be a reflection of the quality of its leadership from mayor to president. As we have seen in this decade, uninformed leadership is surely not good enough.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Two thousand cheering fans watched the Rhody Rams dominate the University of New Hampshire 110-59 last Thursday evening. It was a great win by a Rhode Island team that was looking for revenge after a humilitating defeat by Boston College 125-73 two days previously. It was another notch in the win column for Rhody but a big X in the loss column for their infamous coach, Ernest Calverley.

Boston College had made Rhode Island look bad in an on local TV due to a variety of factors. It was an exceptional performance by the Eagles and a below par one on behalf of our boys. For a coach with pride in his team this is hard to swallow, but why should he be unexcted?

Mr. Calverley was humiliating by the Boston College defeat, but is this any reason to turn around and play the same trick on a fellow member of the coaching fraternity? Perhaps the Mr. Calverley should be de-bottomed.

It is hard to find any fault in a coaching job when a team wins big points. However, this observer did. With four minutes remaining in the New Hampshire halve there were prominent members of the starting team still playing! The score at this point was 100-51! Many will say that these players deserve to continue playing, especially when they are having exceptional performances.

I always enjoy seeing a great basketball player at his best, shooting, rebounding and playmaking — playing his heart out for only one purpose: to obtain victory.

Once that victory is secure, however, I hate to see him head-butting his way to get easy baskets by letting up on defense and standing near the basket while the ball is at the other end of the court. Many will say a prominent player deserves these extra points—maybe he does.

Did anyone think what would have happened if any of these prominent players had twisted an ankle and were lost for the remainder of the season?

Mr. Calverley didn’t. But then, no one is thinking of Mr. Calverley if it is➳ good for change. Goodbye Big E.

Jeff Millman

Essential Need

Recently, this university’s Debate Union sponsored a public debate. Invited to participate were two English gentlemen. What began as a tongue-in-cheek affair became for the audience as well as the debaters an exchange which has become unique to this campus. One gained a newer more vital sense, at the very least, of how two men of another country view the world.

Such exchanges are now rare in this university community. We have allowed our rural locale and the snow around us to descend as a prison wall. There is nothing that can take the place of direct human communication.

During our 75th year we were regularly visited by stimulating speakers; however, this year we must assume, such exchanges have been deemed unnecessary. We have from all apparent signs retreated to the self-satisfying and self-deceiving comfort of isolationism. The voices of W. H. Auden, Sen. Wayne Morse, Walter Reuther, and Clark Kerr have not yet died from these halls, yet none have come to take their place.

The university has recently had this debate and Congressman Joe Pool. Congressman Pool appeared to the majority that heard him to be very uninformed. Thus his speech could do only a small part in filling such a large void on campus this year. If this is all we are to have, where is the opportunity to use an open mind, to judge and make evaluations on controversial subjects? Controversial subjects which can best be learned by listening to speakers who represent both views. And where are the speakers to present the myriad of other topics which have also become so controversial today?

A essential purpose of education must be to develop an awareness of the world, so as to be able to make better critical judgements concerning our lives and times. If we are to do the things that contribute to an academic community, as Dr. Don F. James has stated, then, here is an essential area, for such a community, being generally neglected.

Three Negroes Die In Orangeburg Riots

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (CPS) — On Thursday, February 6, these three black students were shot to death when police opened fire on an assembly of students near the entrance to South College here. Thirty-seven other students were wounded.

Most of the early press coverage of the event was a re-statement of the police view of what happened. It was reported, therefore, that the three died in an exchange of gunfire with the police, that sniper fire from the students was the exchange, that "power-militants" had invoked a student riot, that students had stolen ROTC target rifles for use in the battle, that the presence of 600 Guardsmen had neutralized all fire, etc.

Next day, the first public dispute about what happened Thursday night began NBC Correspondent Sidney Lazard who was on the scene that night, said in a morning broadcast that the other newsmen on the scene agreed that the police gunfire wasn't provoked by sniper fire from the students. State officials, including Gov. Robert E. McNair, emphatically denied Lazard's conclusion.

Omitted

In his evening broadcast, Lazard omitted any reference to the question of who fired first, because, he explained later, the situation that night was too confused for him to be sure what happened, and because he didn't think the issue was worth the controversy it had aroused.

But controversy continued, nonetheless, and spread to include a number of questions about what happened that night. Some of the questions have been more or less resolved—others probably never will be.

give consideration to the future as well as to Vietnam right now. We shouldn't let the problem of Vietnam stand in the way of creating a lasting peace in the world."

Dr. Milton Salzman, Professor of Agricultural Chemistry and a member of the United World Federalists, said, "Students hold the key to what's after Vietnam. Students are the only ones able to strike out." Dr. Salzman said a strong U.N. is needed if peace is to come to the world.

Dr. Nelson Marshall, Prof. of Oceanography, and another member of the organization said, "The U.N. has a long way to go before it will be able to be a strong organization." Dr. Marshall said that a reconvening of the Geneva Conference may be needed if the U.N. can't handle the problems of world peace. The United World Federalists feel, he said, that Communist China should be made part of the U.N. He said, "How can you have talks with about one fifth of the population left out?" Dr. Marshall told the audience of 50 people that Senators Pastore and Feiring are firm supporters of the United World Federalists.

Garrett C. Clough, Asst. Prof. of Zoology, the last speaker in the program and also a member of the United World Federalists, said the university has to change its orientation toward the support of peace in the world. He said there is a Fund for the Education of World Order which sponsors a Student Forum for International Order and World Peace. The forum, he said, seeks to establish courses on order and peace on campus. He stressed that some movement must be made here on campus. Mr. Clough added that many faculty members are interested in seeing such courses offered on campus.

Student Senate to Offer Teaching Aid Program

The Student Senate committee set up to study a workable Senate "Teaching Aid Program" completed the initial phase of re- search last week by taking a survey of freshman students during their classes on Feb. 6 and 7. The results indicated that most students were complete- ly unaware of the tutorial pro- gram of the counseling center. The majority of freshmen ex- pressed a desire to use special classes if they were made available. The program, pending ap- proval of the Faculty Senate, will offer free tutorial classes to students needing help with certain courses. Such classes have been held under the direction of Dr. David H. Freeman, chairman of the Philosophy Department, for Philosophy 1 students. These classes were taught by graduate students and finance- nce.

Senators Norris Whitson in- troduced the bill in the Senate at last week's session to expand the tutorial classes to all students who needed such courses. The students who took part in the survey are required to sign up for this class during the regular registration period. The results will be used in the Senate's further consider- ations of the requirements of the "Teaching Aid Program." Senator Whitson also plans to survey other classes in the near future.

Freshman Basketball
Profiles
by Austin Chadwick

Little Ed Molloy and big "Bud" Hazard have captured most of the headlines, but they are only part of this year's usually victorious freshman basketball story. Here are four of the other steady ball players who have made the team run smoothly and quickly:

Ron Tishkevich
A speedy guard, Ron comes from traditionally powerful Erasmus High of Brooklyn. Earl Shannon, freshman coach, calls him "a very knowledgeable player."

Dick Greene
Dick has become an increasingly important competitor lately with his rebounding and smooth shooting. Strictly a shooter in high school according to Coach Shannon, Greene has improved his defense and ability to fit into a fast-break offense. "He has learned a lot and is a willing worker," says Shannon. End Mark Rubin
A much sought-after high school star from Massachusetts, Mark Rubin has improved rapidly in his last several games. Accustomed to a guard position, Rubin has been forced to rebound because of a height shortage in the front court. His coach says he has realized he must help on the boards and that his play has progressed especially well in the last six games.

Jane Stephenson
Despite the fact he stands only six feet even, Andy is a valuable rebounder because of his great spring. He also has a good short jump shot and is always alert on the fast break. However, Coach Shannon says he must convert to the backcourt if he is to be a valuable varsity player. Andy is currently sidelined for an indefinite period as the result of an injury sustained in an automobile accident during inter-session.

Al Hazard
Hazard plays a defensive role in the backcourt. Pat plays left fullback, halfbacks, two fullbacks and a goalie. Pat plays left fullback. "It's a fast game," he said. "You are running most of the time." At the beginning of the season, Pat ran a mile every couple of days to get in shape. A field hockey game lasts 50 minutes, and like ice hockey, it is a low-scoring game. Pat said from one to three points would be typical scores, and many times there is no score at all. The equipment is similar to that used in ice hockey, with a ball replacing the puck. Pat says field hockey enjoys a great deal of popularity in many foreign countries and is gaining fans in the United States.

Alpha Phi Omega is sponsoring the "Tell Me On Campus About UMOC" to raise money for the local Rhode Island chapter. Each fraternity, sorority, dorm, and men's organization will be asked to select one candidate. A panel of judges will be invited to the contest to determine which candidates look the best in the contest. It will be held Thursday, February 21, 1968.

The contest will be done with the same rules as the current "Tell Me On Campus About UMOC." Each candidate's picture will be taken February 28 with the help of Dracula or a ghoulish looking person. The picture will be taken in the main lobby from the front and from the rear. The judges will be one of the fraternity, from the sorority, from the dorm, and from the men's organization. The pictures will be displayed in the campus square and on the bulletin boards. People may vote for the candidate they choose. While watching Bob Cousy's Boston College Eagles humiliate the Rhody basketball forces, 125-73, in a televised game last week, a familiar thought kept coming to find. That is, what has happened to the exciting fast-break offense so successfully employed at URI by the late Frank Keaney, and performed to perfection by such former Ram greats as Fred Conley, Stan Stutz, Chet Jaworski, Warner Keaney, and Ernie Calverley himself.

As has happened so many times this season against other tough opponents, the Eagles fell victim to a speed-coached Boston College team which skillfully took advantage of Rhody's cold outside shooting and frequent defensive lapses in scoring numerous easy layups.

Rather than attempting to run with their opponents, Coach Calverley's boys seem content to "bomb" from the outside, partially explaining the team's mediocre record this season.

This type of offense is perfectly fine when you are on target, but when you're not, well we all saw the result.

Although it is perhaps too late to accomplish any form reversal this season, it is strongly felt that Ernie Calverley must bring back the fast-break if future URI basketball teams are to enjoy any appreciable degree of success against top opponents of Boston College's caliber.

Two for Art. Art Stephenson goes up for a two-pointer in game against New Hampshire. No. 22 looking on is Rhody's Joe Zaranka.

Rhode Island was one of the biggest surprises of the season, but Coach Tom Russell has had the Rams well drilled in the fundamentals. The Ramlets have the size and ability to cause trouble for any team.

Russell has his hands full in trying to control the two different styles of play. The Rams are a team that can score quickly and efficiently, but they must also be able to adjust to slower, more patient play. Russell has his team ready for either style.

Solid Contenders
Rhody then swept the first three places in the dash and the broad jump. John Cosenza, Bill Audrey, and John Hess accomplished this rarity at the annual Rhode Island State games.

Bob Fowler led Dave Paxton and Dave Klein (shod) into the blank line in the 100-yard dash. This is the first time in many years that Rhody has such strength in the dash.

Cosenza's jump of 50 feet, 6 3/4 inches established him as a strong contender for the Yankee Conference title.

Other victors for the Rams were Dave Klein (shod), and Pete Whitfield (high hurdles). Both of these men, along with Charlie Meglini, should be considered solid contenders for championships in the Yankee Conference.

Cosenza set the pace for the Ram runners with a good time of 2:15.9 in winning the 1,600-yard run. Charlie was shooting for the field-house standard, but a slow first quarter cost him the record attempt.

Little Eddie Molloy Plays Giant's Role in Ram Attack
by Joe Jarocki

Since the very beginning of the season, followers of URI basketball have been impressed with the scoring of the freshmen team in particular, and the skill of the Ram graduate team more in general. The large wing, Fred Conley, has been most impressive, and, having acquired a great deal of admiration for Art Stephenson, the big forward for St. Agnes High in Merrick, New York, one of the summer leagues, it seems to this writer that the freshman team has a player who can and will make a difference in the team's drive to a second straight championship.

What has impressed Ed's fans is that he has been a consistent performer, being among the team's leading scorers with more than twenty points per game. His excellent passing has been noted, and Ed's ability to be the perfect complement to center Bud Hazard, to score the fast breaks made possible by Hazard's rebouding.

In addition to this, his quickness on defense has enabled him to consistently oppose opposing teams, a point of strength of his game. He has been one of the key men in the team's drive to a 12-2 record at present, the team's leading scorer, with an average of better than twenty points per game.
