Extension for Revision to Section 3.21.21 of the University Manual

The University College and General Education Committee requests that the Faculty Faculty Senate grant an extension of time until the 1988-89 academic year for the UCGE Committee to recommend a modification to section 3.21.21 of the University Manual in order to clarify "appropriate adjustments" for advising.

* Fall 1988

Rationale:

The University College and General Education Committee believes that the issue of "appropriate adjustment" for advising requires a thorough review of existing practices by various departments and colleges before the members can recommend a change in the University Manual. In addition, the UCGE Committee feels that it may be necessary to consider the entire paragraph before recommending any changes. Because there is not adequate time for a thorough review before the end of the current semester and because this matter is too important to rush into without adequate deliberation and consultation, the UCGE Committee requests that their report on 3.21.21 be postponed definitely until the 1988-89 academic year.
