

1
9
3
4

T
H
E

G
R
I S
T

Mary Van Benschoten

Delta Zeta

Kington Inn

THE

GRIST

NINETEEN HUNDRED THIRTY-FOUR

Copyrighted

by

H. HORVITZ

Editor-in-Chief

FREDERICK N. STICKNEY

Business Manager

MAY, 1934

THE

GRIST

VOLUME XXXIV

PUBLISHED BY THE SENIOR CLASS
OF RHODE ISLAND STATE COLLEGE AT KINGSTON, R. I.

1934

THIS, THE NINETEEN THIRTY-FOUR
GRIST, IS DEDICATED TO THE PEOPLE OF RHODE ISLAND WITHOUT WHOSE HELPFUL
CO-OPERATION NEITHER THIS COLLEGE NOR THIS BOOK WOULD BE POSSIBLE

DR. HAROLD W. BROWNING

TO THE CLASS OF 1934:

As you are about to graduate, the rising sun of returning prosperity is brightening the eastern skies. Yet, clouds of a new social and economic order are on the horizon. Laborers are many but leaders are few. This is a time of opportunity. Enter the field of labor with that courage and determination that has always characterized a true Rhode Islander in the hours of struggle. Believe in yourselves and in your powers to achieve. With firm will and stout heart do your duty as it comes your way. May success and happiness be your just reward.

HAROLD W. BROWNING,
Class Adviser

FOREWORD

We, the members of the class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-four, are rapidly approaching the time when we must leave our surroundings of the past four years and step forth into the world which lies before us. Here, at Rhode Island State College, we have passed the happiest period of our lives. Some of us have accomplished those aims which we had in view upon entering college, and some have not. Some have always basked in the lime-light of glory while others have done their part unnoticed. However, we all share in common our love for our Alma Mater.

Now, as the time of parting with these familiar scenes approaches, we look back upon these happy years, and long that we may have after our graduation some connection with our dear Alma Mater other than that afforded by occasional visits to the college and by class reunions. We long to have a reminder of our classmates, of the professors who so influenced our lives, and of the scenes which we once knew so well.

It is for this purpose that this, the 1934 GRIST, is published, so that in years to come we may open this volume, and once more regale ourselves with memories of our eventful and joyous youth.

GRIST BOARD

Editor-in-Chief
HYMAN HORVITZ

Assistant Editor
FREDERICK DELANEY

Managing Editor
ARTHUR C. CHURCHILL

Business Manager
FRED N. STICKNEY

Photo Editor
DOROTHY B. KASPER

EDWARD GEREMIA

Co-ed Editor
CHARLOTTE WATERS

ROY PETERSON

LEONARD TAMULEVICH

C. EVERETT COLLINS

HELEN GLEN

WILLIAM LALLI

MARION VATRO

TABLE OF CONTENTS

OUR SCHOOL
THE COLLEGE
SENIORS
ATHLETICS
FRATERNITIES
SORORITIES ACTIVITIES
CALENDAR
ADVERTISEMENTS

