Iannone, Carol: News Articles (1991): Letter to the Editor 05

Joel Conarroe

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.uri.edu/pell_neh_I_36/25

Recommended Citation

This Letter to the Editor is brought to you for free and open access by the Education: National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities, Subject Files I (1973-1996) at DigitalCommons@URI. It has been accepted for inclusion in Iannone, Carol: News Articles (1991) by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@URI. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@etal.uri.edu.
Daffynition

The real surprise is that so many worthy causes are so large I can only mention a few.

Already I'm dancing as fast as I can!

The tempo increases.

I fear for the future of the Beat Generation. What happened to waltzes and the number of worthy causes that were so large I can only mention a few.

I'm an old man, and yet I'm dancing as fast as I can!

—Henry F. Hill.

... and Phone Number

The number of worthy causes today is so large I can only guess. The real surprise is that so many people have my name and address.

—George O. Ludcke.

Daffynition

Track star: jumping jock.

—Daisy Brown.

Soldier, There's Dust On Your Rear Fenders

Having served in Operation Desert Shield/Storm, I was amused by your April 23 page-one article on Oman. As an Army Physician, I was affiliated with an evacuation hospital based in Oman. Fortunately, there were very few American casualties, so some of us were assigned to assist at the Omani hospitals near Muscat.

Each time we went to the hospital we would have to spray-rinse our car, then wash it again upon return to our base. At first I thought this to be part of an Army "spit-and-polish" program, but soon was informed of the correct reason. Oman has a $100 (equivalent) fine for driving a dirty car. Since I never saw a dirty car, nor even one with dents or other displeasing blemishes, I now assume the sultan's decree for spotlessness is the reason.

C. Peter Goodnoough, M.D.
Elmira, N.Y.

Talent, Not Color, Won Them Pulitzers

Your May 23 editorial about literary critic Carol Iannone's nomination to the National Council on the Humanities takes me to task for describing as nonsense her claim that "black writers demanded and obtained the Pulitzer Prize" for Toni Morrison. I stand by my opinion. A group of black writers did, as the editorial points out, publish a petition in support of Ms. Morrison, but the absurd claim that they "obtained" a prize for her is not supported by any evidence whatsoever. Had Ms. Iannone taken the trouble to talk with administrators of the Pulitzer Prizes before committing herself to print she would have been disabused of her bizarre theory.

Having served on fiction juries for the Pulitzer Prizes, the National Book Awards and the National Book Critics' Circle, I think I am in a position to suggest that these boards are not swayed by external pressure. Moreover, contrary to Ms. Iannone's assertion, they are certainly not engaged in literary welfare. Surely one does not have to be "politically correct" to find condescending, both to writers and to jurors, her insistence that the superb black novelists who have won major literary awards in recent years were selected only because of their color.

New York

Joel Conarroe

Pepper ... and Salt

Beat Generation

What happened to waltzes
And all those slow pieces?
With every new dance step
The tempo increases.
I fear for the future
When I'm an old man.
Already I'm dancing
As fast as I can!

—Henry F. Hill.

... and Phone Number

The number of worthy causes today is so large I can only guess.
The real surprise is that so many people have my name and address.

—George O. Ludcke.

Daffynition

Track star: jumping jock.

—Daisy Brown.

"In conclusion, I hope you go out there and get some great graduation gifts."