   The institute will be administered outside the departmental structure, as an interdisciplinary unit, under the leadership of a director who will report directly to the Dean of the College of Business Administration. The goals of the institute are to foster, encourage, and support research in international business, drawing on University faculty and outside resources to serve the needs of the business community and to enrich the academic and outreach programs of the College of Business Administration. Faculty members will be involved on a voluntary basis, and will be drawn from each of the College's departments.

8. Resource_Requirement
   No new or additional resources will be required and no new state-funded positions will be required by the new structure. Operational support will be provided by external funds from both private and Federal governmental sources. An initial grant of $150,000.00 was awarded in April 1987 to assist in the process of establishing the institute. This grant came from the PPG Foundation of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. No operational support is required for the institute.

   No additional personnel will be required, but will be drawn from the respective departments of the College of Business Administration and their released time will be proportionately paid for out of the external grants.

   Space for the institute will be provided for in the College of Business Administration's existing facilities.
B. RATIONALE

The College of Business Administration, over the years, has emphasized teaching and research in international business. This is reflected both in the curriculum and in the faculty's overseas projects. Since 1964 a joint program with the Department of Languages in the College of Arts and Sciences has permitted undergraduates to minor in international business and in a selected language. At the graduate level, a concentration in international business permits the student to emphasize this aspect of business studies.

The degree to which the curriculum has taken on an increasingly international emphasis can be measured by the corresponding degree of the United States' interdependence with other societies. There is a general recognition of the need for more research, training and education in the areas of international business, its functional components, and in languages, area studies and cultures.

Accordingly, the Institute's goal is to provide a locus for research, teaching, publishing and executive education in international business. Using external funding, out of grant money, the College has already awarded a Summer 1987 research fellowship which permitted two faculty members to pursue a research project involving several Pacific Basin countries. In the Fall, 1987 semester two $1,000 student scholarships were awarded to encourage students to participate in a Spring, 1988 program at the University of Grenoble in France. These activities are illustrative of the kinds of efforts in which the institute will engage and will include:

- sponsored workshops to bring foreign scholars to campus (jointly with URI's Honor's and Visiting Scholars program)
- an international data bank and library, including an intercultural film and video library (jointly with URI's Library)
- a corporate associate program which will:
  - provide students with internships
  - provide financial contributions to the Institute
  - facilitate management education and training for corporate members' staff

C. INSTITUTIONAL ROLE

The University of Rhode Island is supportive of the State's efforts to:

- stimulate the placement of foreign firms in the State (there are now a total of sixty such firms located in Rhode Island) and to meet the demands of those firms for appropriately trained personnel;
- encourage expertise among State and regional business in exporting American goods and services overseas;
- foster international understanding and goodwill, while at the same time promoting more world trade.

D. INTERINSTITUTIONAL CONSIDERATIONS

No problems.

E. EVALUATION

It is anticipated than an advisory group, drawing upon both external and internal sources, will serve to monitor and evaluate the Institute's efforts. In any event, these efforts will be subject to review by the Dean and faculty of the College of Business Administration and will be consistent with the College's and the University's mission and goals.
